HAND, WHO FLED CELL HERE, CAUGHT

HOOVER HOPES FOR IMMEDIATE PACT PASSAGE

Is Back From Rapidan After Conference With Leaders.

QUESTION OF QUORUM OCCUPIES ATTENTION

Confident Senators Will Be on Hand to Ratify Treaty in 10 Days.

FIRST LADY RETURNS WITH FISHING PARTY

Akerson Says Question of Huston's Status Was Not Discussed.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover returned from his Rapidan River lodge yesterday encouraged in the belief that the London naval treaty would be ratified by the Senate within a week or ten days.

Over the week-end, the President, with Walter Newton, his secretary for political affairs; Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican floor leader; Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant leader, and Senator Fess, of Ohio, the majority whip, canvassed thoroughly the situation in the Senate, with particular reference to the question of obtaining and keeping a quorum.

Confident of Quorum.

It was announced after their return the President was confident enough senators would be on hand tomorrow, if not today, to carry through the administrattion program. Senator Baird (Republican), New Jersey, has cabled from abroad that he is cutting short his honeymoon to return and aid in the treaty fight. Senator Robsion (Republican), Kentucky, also was among those who was said to have communicated assurance to the Chief Executive that they would be in their seats to hold up his hands.

With Mr. Hoover yesterday returned the mistress of the White House, coming back after a month of absence to take up the activities which she was forced to relinquish nearly three months ago after suffering a severely wrenched back.

Mrs. Hoover Much Improved.

Mrs. Hoover was ordered to the camp for a complete rest by Capt. Joel T. Boone, White House physician, after she had attempted to resume her normal activities and suffered a relapse. Since going there she has improved steadily, and for two weeks has been able to go about much as she pleased. In the car with the President and Senator and Mrs. McNary, Mrs. Hoover stood the three-hour trip back, much of it over rough roads, without apparent strain, and left the car at the White House door smiling and pleased to be back.

While discussions of the treaty situation in the Senate and the drafting of the President's message to the Senate, which probably will be sent up tomorrow, occupied much of the time, the Chief Executive and his guests found time for recreation also.

It was said by George Akerson, secretary to Mr. Hoover, after talking with the President by telephone early in the day, that the question of Claudius Huston continuing as chairman of the Republican national committee was not taken up during the three-day visit.

Man's Body Found In Deep Run Creek

Police Believe Victim May Have Been Person Missing Week.

With the finding of the body of a white man in Deep Run Creek yesterday, about a mile east of Laurel, Md., authorities believe they have solved the disappearance of a man named Grover, who lived near Elkridge, Md. Mr. Grover, whose first name could not be learned, has been missing from his home for about a week.

According to Howard County officials, an inquest will be held this morning to learn the cause of the man's death. It is said that Mr. Grover had been despondent and may have committed suicide. Whether or not there were any wounds on the body could not be learned last night.

The body was found by a colored man named Friday. Friday saw the body in the creek and notified police. It is said the body showed evidence of having been in the water some time.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: It is estimated that our tourists will spend about five hundred million dollars in Europe this season. That money would employ half a million people at the rate of one thousand dollars per year. It is about twice the amount Europe is paying our Government on the debt settlement. Some of these travelers may not give a correct impression of our country.

Yet, on the whole, this will have to be considered a good investment. It is difficult to say that the advantages which accrue to international trade and finance do not balance the benefits that would be derived from the same expenditure at home. Travel is a great civilizer. If few Europeans know much about the United States, it is of all the more benefit to us that so many of our people are gaining a wide acquaintance with them. While our tourists will find many things to admire and some to emulate, a careful investigation will convince them that the general condition of the people of their own country is unsurpassed. They will return for the most part more content with their own institutions, more loyal to their own Government, more devoted to their own faith. Those who do not will not be of great consequence.

Mr. Coolidge's comment on current events will appear every week day in The Washington Post.

ALLEN USURPS ROLE OF PACT STEERSMAN

Kansan, in Plea for Speedy Ratification, Sees No Need for Debate.

QUORUM TODAY IN DOUBT

By ALBERT W. FOX.

With the battle over ratification of the London Naval Treaty scheduled to begin today, there were several last-minute developments calculated to complicate and enliven the situation.

In the first place, Senator Allen, leader of the Young Guard, stepped in unexpectedly to usurp the role Senator Borah or some other member of the foreign relations committee might be expected to play in presenting the pact to the Senate and to the country.

Mr. Allen issued a long, carefully prepared statement calling upon the Senate to ratify promptly by an impressive majority and adding his assurance that such action will meet with public approval.

Republican leaders had no notice of Mr. Allen's statement nor were members of the foreign relations committee consulted. Furthermore, there were indications that Senator Allen does not share the views of certain members of the foreign relations committee who are willing to concede to treaty opponents the right to full debate and ample time to thoroughly study the provisions of the treaty.

According to Senator Allen, the Senate has already had full opportunity to study the provisions of the treaty. None of the objections to the pact "justify a failure to ratify the treaty at once," adds the senator from Kansas.

The effect of the new leadership may be apparent today unless there is a lack of a quorum. In this latter event the Senate will be forced to adjourn until tomorrow. President Hoover's message to Senator Swanson's opening speech for the treaty will feature tomorrow's proceedings, if there is a quorum. The prevailing belief is that there will be a quorum tomorrow, if not today, and that 51 or 52 senators may be counted upon during the week.

Whether this number will remain intact beyond the week is admittedly

FALLS YIELDS BODY OF BARREL VICTIM

Dare-Devil, Taken Out of Intact Container, Killed by Suffocation, Says Coroner.

TURTLE EMERGES ALIVE

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 6 (A.P.).—George Stathakis was suffocated in the barrel in which he attempted to navigate the rapids above Niagara Falls and plunge over the cataract, according to Coroner W. W. Thompson, of Niagara Falls, Ont. The body was removed from the barrel this afternoon. The barrel, intact, was sighted shortly after 6 o'clock this morning by Canadian observers at the Canadian end of Falls View Bridge. It was bumping against the rocks on the Canadian side of the river.

William (Red) Hill, veteran riverman, and his son, Williiam, jr., descended into the gorge and after much difficulty the barrel, weighing more than a ton, was taken to the Canadian shore, near the Falls View Bridge. It was floating end up, but the manhole through which Sathakis entered was on the submerged end. When the manhole finally was brought above the surface the sixteen bolts by which it was fastened were removed.

Stathakis' body was found still strapped to a mattress, which he had designed as a buffer against the side of the barrel. Coroner Thompson expressed the belief that he had been dead ten or twelve hours.

If Coroner Thompson's diagnosis is correct, Stathakis was a prisoner in the barrel, held back by the curtain of water of the horseshoe falls for several hours before he succumbed. His supply of oxygen was good for only about three hours. There was hardly a bruise on the man's body. A 105-year-old turtle that Stathakis said was "sacred" to an unnamed Greek cult and which was taken along by the adventurer was alive and uninjured.

Stathakis carried a pad of paper and a pencil when he entered the barrel, saying he would note some of his sensations during the trip. There was not a mark on the paper.

Stathakis' barrel bore some dents in the steel ends and scars on the stout oak staves, marks made by the Association Affirmed Stand It Would Not Indorse Wet Candidate.

New York, July 6.—A dispatch to the New York World from its Washington bureau says:

A $15,000,000 campaign, extending over five years and designed to sell prohibition to the United States through propoganda placed in schools, colleges, churches, luncheon clubs and other strategic centers, is outlined in Antisaloon League documents which have been made a part of the record of the Senate lobby committee since that group concluded its hearings.

The procedure outlined is similar to that resorted to by public utilities interests and uncovered by the Federal Trade Commission's investigation, including a system of keeping in touch with teachers, student leaders, ministers, other "good people" in strategic positions, and utilization of the radio, personal visits from hired agents, and propaganda disseminated through newspapers and by motion pictures.

These league records all relate to events subsequent to those disclosed by the Reed committee investigation in 1926. They disclose some of the league's plans with relation to the 1928 presidential campaign, including a formal notice served on President Coolidge in 1927 that a dry must be nominated.

Some Information Missing.

Some documents, however, the titles of which indicate that they would be important as showing the league's practical activities, are noted as missing from the files.

Notwithstanding consideration given to the $15,000,00 propaganda plan, the records disclose that in 1927 the national league was in arrers more than $32,000 on salaries due its national officials, and later ther were threats to oust State superintendents whose States did not contribute generously to the national body.

In addition there is an indication that the Nation-wide spy system

NATION OPPOSES COUP

Lisbon, Portugal, July 6 (A.P.).—Almost without display of force, the Portuguese government nipped in the bud on Friday night a serious revolutionary movement headed by Col. Joao Almeida, a monarchist leader.

An official note announcing Col. Almeida's arrest, and that of several civilians, late last night gave the first news that a plot had been formed to overthrow the virtual dictatorship of President Antonio Carmona.

Lisbon, Portugal, July 6 (A.P.).—An official note issued by the government announces discovery of a conspiracy to overthrow the present regime, and the arrest of several persons in the course of energetic measures to prevent a revolt.

The note, made public late last night, was as follows: "Col. Joao Almeida has been arrested and sent to Elvas Fortress, it being ascertained that he was preparing a revolutionary movement to overthrow the government and was in association with elements manifestly hostile to the dictatorship. Several other civilians have been arrested. The police are investigating a network of conspiracy. Energetic measures have been adopted against disturbers of the public order."

Though the monarchist Almeida headed the movement, several other groups combined to form it, including the Democrats, who were swept to power by the 1926 revolution. Indeed, the Democrats predominated among the leaders.

News of the failure of the plot was received generally with a sign of relief. Observers said the plotters had chosen the worst possible moment to bring off their coup. The fourth year of the dictatorship's administration finds Portugal not only

Emelle Again Quiet After Force of 200 Abandons Hunt for Killers.

Emelle, Ala., July 6 (A.P.).—Two Negroes slain early today by posses searching for four others in connection with the killing of two white men brought to a total of six the deaths growing out of disorders arising here on the Fourth of July.

Quiet again prevailed late today with roving bands of more than 200 men quitting the hunt after a night of running down wild reports that the four Negroes had been sighted at various places. Leaders said they were convinced the Negroes, Tom Robertson and his sons, Esau, Ollie and John, have fled into Mississippi.

Those killed early today were an unidentified Negro in the railway station at Narchetta, Miss., and a Negro woman, whose husband, James Eyer, failed to heed a command of a posse to bring his automobile to a stop on a road near the Alabama-Mississippi State line.

The previous death list included: Grover Boyd, white, storekeeper; Charlie Marrs, a white farmer; John Robertson, Negro, brother of Tom; Jacob Robertson.

Fired at Pursuers.

The Negro killed at Narchetta was shot after he fired at the possemen and wounded Clarence Bush, of Emelle, in the elbow. Bush returned the fire, killing the Negro. Members of the posse said they had found the Negro in the station and had sought to search him. Ordered to raise his hands, he opened fire instead.

Eyer apparently became panic-stricken when ordered to halt. Shots were fired in an effort to halt him, and as the machine rolled to a stop, other occupants of the car fled. It was then discovered that the woman had been killed.

The trouble had its inception the afternoon of July 4 in an argument between Esau Robertson and Clarence Boyd, nephew of Grover Boyd, who took a battery he had sold the Negro from the car when he could not pay for it. The Negro later appeared at Grover Boyd's store and asked to talk to Clarence.

When the younger Boyd went outside he was attacked by Esau, his father and brothers. Grover Boyd, running to his nephew's aid, was shot down from behind by Jacob.

Lynched in Woods.

Bystanders grabbed Jacob, but the other Negroes fled. Jacob was held in custody by a crowd that gradually grew as word of the shooting spread and that night he was taken into the woods and hanged.

Sheriff W. D. Scales and his deputies arriving later took up the search

CAPITAL YOUTH SHOT TO DEATH IN SOUTH

Columbia Filling Station Owner Fires Bullet, Slaying Boy.

WAS ON VACATION TRIP

Columbia, S. C., July 6 (A.P.).—A youth, believed by police to be Joseph Hammond Jerman, of 2717 Thirteenth street northwest, Washington, D. C., died at a hospital here late today after having been shot in the head by G. H. Priester, filling station operator.

Priester told the police that he was awakened at an early hour this morning by a noise in front of his station and that he fired to freighten the youth, when he saw him attempting to remove oil from the station storage tank.

Such identification as local authorities have came from a card in the boy's pocket.

Joseph Hammon Jerman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Jerman, of 2717 Thirteenth street northwest. With his parents, the boy was on a week-end outing in South Carolina when he was shot. The parents have not yet returned to Washington.

Young Jerman was a student at a military academy in West Virginia. He had been home only a few days when he started on the fatal outing.

Fatal Riots Mark Mexican Balloting

One to Five Reported Dead in Capital's Suburbs; 15 to 30 Hurt.

Mexico City, July 6 (A.P.).—Rioting broke out here late this evening during voting in Mexico's congressional election. Early reports said that between 1 and 5 persons had been killed and from 15 to 30 injured. The two most serious clashes occurred in attacks by groups armed with clubs on a voting booth and in a fight with clubs and stones by partisans on the rival parties. Both were in the suburbs.

Reports from other places in Mexico tonight also mentioned clashes, but gave no casualties.

The candidates of the National Revolutionary party, to which President Ortiz Rubio belongs, in most places apparently were well in the lead for both senate and chamber over those of the Antireelection party.

Plane Radio Record Made.

Buenos Aires, July 6 (A.P.).—While flying 3,000 feet above the airport here yesterday, Capt. Yancey, American aviator, held a 30-minute radio conversation with the wireless station of the New York Times, 5,300 miles away. The conversation established a record for distance between a plane and a land station.

POLICE CORNER W. W. HAND IN CHICAGO ROOM

Capture Recalls Brazen Escape From District Last October.

REACHES FOR PISTOL AS OFFICERS APPEAR

Robber Is Overpowered, However; Ohio Seeks Extradition.

NEAR SCANDAL MADE BY CAPITAL FLIGHT

Story May Never Be Told, as City Plans to Take No Action Now.

Wilbur William Hand, convicted Ohio bank robber and gunman, the prisoner who walked out of a Fifth Precinct station cell here last October a short while before Ohio police arrived to return him, was captured yesterday in Chicago. He was taken, according to Associated Press dispatches, as police launched a roundup at a new crime outbreak kthere.

His arrest recalled his brazen getaway from the precinct station, an escape which for a time threatened a scandal in the Police Department. The inside stotry of his daring act appeared as a mystery never to be resolved, however, unless Hand chooses to reveal his accomplices.

"We would like mighty well to find out how Hand made his escape here, but we have no other interest in him, as we had no charges against him and held him merely for Ohio police," declared Lieut. W. O. Embrey, in charge of the detective bureau at night. "It is unlikely that we will send a man to try to obtain his story of the escape, as we would have no assurance that he was telling the truth."

Seizes Gun as Police Appear.

Hand, according to dispatches, was seized by police as he lay in bed at daybreak yesterday in a Chicago rooming house, where he had been in hiding recently. As police surrounded the house and swept into his room he reached for a pistol, but was overpowered. He had been wanted in Harrisburg, Pa., on robbery charges.

Authorities in Crawford County, Ohio, last night announced that Gov. Myers Y. Cooper, in Columbus, will be asked today to issue extradition papers to have Hand brought back into the State. They said they would proceed immediately to Chicago to take Hand in custody if the request is granted.

Harry Zillim, who was convicted as one of Hand's accomplices, is serving a long term in the Ohio State Penitentiary.

Arrested Here for Loitering.

Hand was taken in custody for investigation early on the morning of October 13 while loitering at Eighth and E streets northwest by First Precinct Policeman F. E. Ambrose, during the arrest of George Clark, 37 years old, of the Houston Hotel. Ambrose said he arrested both after having viewed the suspicious actions of the pair on the same corner two mornings earlier.

Hand then gave his name as William James Hennessey, 35 years old, of 3203 North Charles street, Baltimore. Identification was established the next day and he was held as a fugitive from justice. He had been convicted in Crawford County, Ohio, of complicity in the robbery of $175,000 from the Commercial Savings Bank of Galion, Ohio, which was held up by five armed bandits on June 28, 1927. He was convicted and sentenced to 12 to 25 years in

Bridegroom Victim Of Mystery Attack

Arnolds, Md., Farmer Is Found, After Day and Night Search, Bound in Woods—Was Beaten and Robbed of $300.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 6.—Police tonight were on the lookout for three men accused of holding up and robbing Clifton Borneman, 30, of Arnolds, near here, who was found this afternoon in an unconscious condition in the woods near his home. His skull had been fractured.

Borneman, who maintains a small farm and is also a nurseryman on the John W. Sherwood property, was, in the opinion of the police, a victim of a highway holdup and possible murder attempt.

He had been missing since 10 o'clock yesterday morning, with State police, Sheriff Michael F. Carter, of Anne Arundel County, and the city departments of Annapolis and Baltimore searching for him.

The man's moanings led to his discovery this afternoon, when a Negro helper on his farm found him in a clump of bushes near the barn.

Bornemann last Tuesday married Miss Jane Tall, 27, of Baltimore. The couple planned a belated honeymoon and Borneman returned to Annapolis yesterday and drew $300 from one of the city banks. He was on his way back to Baltimore and had reached Pasadena when attacked, he told the authorities this evening.

It was hours after he was found before Borneman was able to speak. His statement, according to Harold Bunker, Arnold's business man, and others who were near him, follows in part:

"I had reached Pasadena when a large car containing three men I had never seen before pulled up in front and ordered me to stop. One of the men cried, 'You are the man we want. I am going to fix you.' I got out of the machine and I suddenly saw stars. I do not remember anything else until now."

The all-night search conducted secretly last night led to Borneman's car being found at Devil's Elbow on the Magothy River, 3 miles from his home. It had apparently been driven to this deserted spot by one of the alleged attackers.

It was at first believed that Borneman must have been drugged to have remained unconscious nearly 30 hours. Dr. Purvis, however, said today following examination that the blow had been solely responsible, and had nearly proved fatal. Borneman still is in a precarious condition.

Police have nothing further to add in the case except the belief that the attackers carried Borneman with them throughout the night after attacking and robbing him of the $300 he planned to use on a honeymoon trip. They term the daylight holdup and the returning of the unconscious man some time early this morning daring, but all the more likely to add to the chances of their apprehension.

While Mrs. Borneman's parents are said to be living in Baltimore, she, according to Mr. Bunker, has not been residing there since her marriage, but had been staying with relatives.

Man Killed, Child Dying In Week End Traffic Toll

Norman Beaton Dies of Injuries Received When Car Rammed Tree; Girl, 5, Suffers Concussion of Brain When Struck by Auto.

A man died yesterday, a child is reported dying and several other persons have been treated at local hospitals as the aftermath of a series of traffic accidents in and near Washington.

Norman T. Beaton, 26 years old, of 62 K street northwest, died at Casualty Hospital as the result of an auto accident Saturday night, when the car ran off a road and hit a tree near T B, Md. He was riding in a car driven by Harold E. McCarthey, 34 years old, of 1500 Taylor street northwest, who was only slightly hurt.

After an accident at Eighth street and Mount Vernon place northwest yesterday afternoon, Teresa Andrews, 5 years old, of 310 C street northwest, was taken to Emergency Hospital. She suffered concussion of the brain when run over by an auto while walking with her mother. Little hope is held for her recovery. According to Second Precinct police, the machine was driven by R. W. Beeskow, 25 years old, of 1420 M street northwest. Beeskow is not being held.

Two persons were hurt when the auto in which they were riding turned over near Fairfax, Va. John Hurley, 32 years old, of 908 New York avenue northwest, is in an undetermined condition at Emergency Hospital. His back is believed to be fractured. His companion, Rosa Stringfellow, 34 years old, of the same address, received only lacerations of the face.

Patricia Reeves, 4 years old, of 1421 S street southeast, while walking across S street with her mother, Mrs. Nellie Reeves, at the intersection of Nichols avenue southeast early yesterday afternoon, suddenly bolted

Crash Halts Atlantic Hop; Seven Die in Plane Mishaps

Craft of Maj. Wynne-Eaton Falls 20 Feet at Take-Off and Bursts Into Flames, Hurting Aviator; Two Ships Plunge Into Water, Killing Trio.

(Associated Press.)

Seven persons were killed and two were injured in airplane mishaps in various parts of the United States yesterday.

One of the injured was Maj. C. S. Wynne-Eyton, British airman, who had hoped to be the first west-to-east transatlantic flier of this year. He was but slightly injured when his plane crashed in an attempt to take off for a trial flight at St. Johns, N. F.

Of the seven killed, three died when their planes fell into water. Bert A. Kogle of Kansas City, Mo., and his copilot, Duane L. Heller, of Chicago, met death in Lake Michigan. Their plane fell near South Haven, Mich. The other flier to die in water was Dick Dodds, a real estate operator of Santa Ana, Calif. He was killed when his monoplane plunged into Crescent Bay, at Laguna Beach, Calif., while stunting above crowded beaches.

The other victims were Martin Wilska, a student pilot and John W. Gorman, his instructor, killed in a crash at Floyd Bennett Field, on Barren Island, N. Y., and Kenneth Wilson and Ernest Southworth, both of Sioux City, Iowa, who lost their lives at Ruthven, Iowa, when their plane caught in some telephone wires and crashed to earth. A passenger, Miss Vera Hughes, of Ruthven, was critically injured.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, July 6 (A.P.).—Another projected flight across the Atlantic received a severe setback today. Maj. C. S. Wynne-Eyton, British airman who hoped to Ohio Penitentiary, but appealed. Hand was released in $25,000 pending a new trial. Shortly afterward he forfeited his bond and disappeared. He was characterized in lookout circulars as a "bad man, who will not hesitate to shoot."

Disappears from Cell.

He was removed to the Fifth Precinct station to await arrival of Ohio police. Early on the morning of October 23 he suddenly disappeared from his cell, and had been at freedom until his capture yesterday. He had been behind two heavily barred steel doors.

A sweeping investigation was ordered by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, which revealed that an official police key had been used by Hand to make his getaway. Inspector Albert J. Headley, in a report to Maj. Pratt, gave statements that two prisoners had seen Hand leave his cell. Inspector Headley likewise recommended to Maj. Pratt that R. C. Speith, station clerk responsible for the prisoner, be taken before the Police Trial Board. The recommendation was never acted upon.

Robert F. Langdon, while under suspension as a Fifth Precinct detective on liquor charges, figured in the case briefly when Inspector Headley on October 28 reported to Maj. Pratt that Langdon conversed with Hand while the latter was being held at the precinct station. The inspector said that Langdon admitted the allegation, explaining that he was seeking some means of legally aiding to obtain Hand's release.

Sensational Charges Made.

Medio Marinazzi, 30 years old, of New York avenue, near First street northwest, who was held at the same time in the precinct station on liquor charges, made several sensational claims regarding the escape, one of which was to the effect that a "big-faced policeman" unlocked the cell door and that Hand walked boldly out past the station clerks and out the front door of the station. Although confronted with precinct policemen, he failed to spot any so-called accomplice.

On several occasions, police have received reports that Hand had been seen in this locality, at Baltimore, and at York, Pa. On October 25 rumors were in wide circulation to the effect that he was in Baltimore, where he was sought at two of his former addresses. One was his former apartment in North Baltimore, and the other an address in the business section, where he had spent considerable time before his arrest in Washington.

Three Washington detectives joined with authorities in Baltimore for a widespread search there. It was learned that Hand's automobile, bearing Maryland license plates, had been sold in Baltimore about October 19, the sale having been made by his brother, A. J. Hand, of Toledo.

from her mother's hands and ran into the rear fender of an automobile reported by the Eleventh Precinct police to have been operated by W. T. Scott, colored, 19 years old, of G near Third street southeast.

The little girl was placed in the automobile of Eleventh Precinct Detective J. J. Tolson and removed to Providence Hospital, where she was treated for a bruised left foot and several small lacerations and bruises. She later left the hospital with her mother.

In a crash with a Washington Railway & Electric street car which wrecked the automobile he was driving at Fourth and R street northwest, John S. Snyder, 19 years old, of Jackson street near Tenth street northeast, suffered lacerations about the forehead late yesterday afternoon. Snyder was treated at Garfield Hospital. The street car, according to Second Precinct police, was operated by Francis A. Jenkins, 29 years old.

Knocked off the motorcycle he was operating on Military road near Beech drive in Rock Creek Park when he was struck by an automobile, Park Policeman J. F. Grove, 42 years old, assigned to the park, suffered lacerations of both legs, the right arm and body early last night. He was treated at Walter Reed Hospital and dismissed. Police said the car was driven by William Manville, 16 years old, of Daniels road northwest.

British Fliers Missing On Flight to Australia

Rangoon, Burma, July 6 (A.P.).—Despite a diligent search of land and sea, no trace has been found of the British airmen Hook and Matthews since their take-off Thursday from Akyab on an attempted record flight from England to Australia.

An unofficial report that their plane crashed at Taungup, near Sandoway, shortly after leaving Akyab for Rangoon, remain unconfirmed. The fliers were last seen about 80 miles south of Akyab, heading out to sea. A heavy rain is believed to have forced them to descend on the water. All vessels plying between Akyab and Rangoon and all government officials on land have been asked to keep a sharp lookout for the fliers or the wreckage of their plane.

FRED R. BURKE.

LINGLE DETECTIVES HUNT KILLER BURKE

Fugitive Slayer Is Observed at Scene of Crime in Priest's Robes.

ALREADY LONG SOUGHT

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—The name of Fred R. Burke, fugitive killer, today was drawn into the investigation of the recent slaying of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Tribune reporter.

Reports reached investigators that Burke, in the guise of a priest, was one of the gunmen who on June 9 loitered in the Randolph street subway while a blond assassin fired a fatal shot into the back of the reporter's head.

Members of the detective squad which hurried to the tunnel said they saw a man dressed as a priest there, but that in the confusion that followed the slaying he had slipped away unseen. Efforts to locate him have been in vain.

Meanwhile it was announced today the July grand jury will be sworn tomorrow and was expected to be charged with investigation of the Lingle killing and all ramifications.

The official commission handling the inquiry into the newspaperman's assassination is expected to turn over the evidence it has gathered. One of the first witnesses probably will be Frank Foster, owner of the pistol with which Lingle was slain, who was indicted for the slaying. Papers for his extradition from Los Angeles, where he and four henchmen were captured, have been signed.

Burke, a former convict and referred to by police as one of the most dangerous of gangsters, has been the object of a nation-wide search since December, 1929, when he shot and killed Policeman Charles Skelly following an argument over a trivial automobile accident at St. Joseph, Mich.

A coroner's jury has named him as one of the four executioners who slew seven Moran gunmen in February, 1929, in a Chicago garage. He is also wanted at Detroit for questioning in connection with the slaying of Frank Wright, Joseph Bloom and Ruben Cohen; at New York in connection with the murders of Frank Uale and Frank Marlowe, and at Toledo, Ohio, for the slaying of a policeman.

Burke Evades Police Trap.

Former Deputy Police Commissioner John Stege said recently Burke had been in Chicago the day Lingle met death, but officials were unable to trap him despite elaborate preparations.

Week-end crime, suppressed since the reporter's death, flared overnight with a dozen robberies, a bombing and the slaying of three men in pistol duels that followed attempted holdups.

John Powell, a watchman, was shot and killed in a gun battle with two men who robbed a filling station. The body of one of his assailants, identified as that of Charles Plant, was found slumped in an automobile a block away.

Man Who Fled Capital Held.

A police detail captured Wilbur Hand, reputed felon. They said he was wanted for robbery in Plainfield and Galion, Ohio, Abbottstown and Harrisburg, Pa., and Washington, D. C. He was held while authorities communicated with police at those points.

An indication that the investigation into the death of Lingle may widen to take in the general question of rumored alliances between newspapermen and gangsters was seen in a letter written by Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Tribune.

The letter, made public tonight, asked State's Attorney Swanson to investigate charges made in a series of articles by a St. Louis newspaper writer that many Chicago newspaper workers were affiliated with the underworld.

Takes Notice of Rumors.

"It is my opinion," Col. McCormick wrote, "That the writer of these articles should be interrogated and that all probable clews disclosed by him should be mercilessly followed up, regardless of where they lead. I therefore suggest that further examination into the rumors aroused by this case be carried on by your regular staff or by special counsel competent to make such an investigation."

Discussing the numerous rumors which have followed in the wake of the Lingle case and observing that "The names of certain newspaper officials have been bandied around until they are popularly accepted as guilty," Col. McCormick said:

"It seems to me in justice to these men full investigation should be made to establish the innocent and the guilty and also to free from the entire profesion the stigma which has been created by wide dissemination of rumors of all kinds."

Bombay Police Charge Rioters; Ten Injured

Poona, Bombay, India, July 6 (A.P.).—Ten persons were injured today in a clash between police and members of a large procession on its way to the Yeravda Jail to pay homage to Mahatma Gandhi on completion of his second month's imprisonment.

Police told leaders of the procession that it constituted unlawful assembly, whereupon the marchers squatted on the road for six hours, throwing stones and flower pots at the police. Several police were injured. They finally dispersed the crowd with a lathi charge.

Capt. Blake, of the Royal Bombay sappers and miners, who was passing in a motor car with his wife, was injured by a stone thrown through the windshield. His wife fainted, but was uninjured.

TURKS RAIN BOMBS ON ARARAT REBELS

Kurdish Tribes in Border Mountains Seen Facing Extermination.

PRESS ASSAILS PERSIA

Istanbul, Turkey, July 6 (A.P.).—Official announcements today indicated that the Turkish government is closing in on the insurgent Kurds on Mount Ararat, and that the rebel tribes face extermination.

Bombed by Turkish planes, hemmed in by the reinforced Nationalist army, the tribesmen, said a dispatch from Angora, are finding escape toward Persia impossible. If the government's campaign is successful, it will break the power of the fierce Due Lali and Haydaranli tribes. The latter numbers about 5,000, and for centuries has maintained its stronghold on Mount Ararat, descending the slopes each spring to pillage valley villages.

The Turkish press blames the present trouble on the Turkish Sultan, Abdul Hamid, who died in 1918 after being deposed. The newspapers say he gave unlimited power to the tribal leaders and sheiks, many of whom were of the fanatical dervish orders. The fact that the Kurdish tribes recognized no other authority than that of these leaders is considered responsible for the present uprising.

The anti-Persian tone of the press also is growing bitter. The newspaper Vakit, discussing the situation today, said:

"We laugh when the Persians claim they are not responsible for the arming of these tribes, but our laugh today is merely a prelude to tomorrow's roar from the Ghazi."

Turkey denies that her forces are crossing the frontier to attack Kurds reported advancing toward Turkish territory, but well-informed circles here pointed out that it would be difficult to respect the northern boundary rigidly. For 25 miles at one stretch the sole mark on the boundary fixed by treaty is one tree. High mountains have impeded the Turkish attack. Rumors here said the Kurds had brought down three Turkish planes.

The Kurdish tribes are believed to have been stirred to action by the Turkish government's arrest of Sheik Selahedding, 20-year-old son of Sheik Said, leader of the Kurdish revolt in 1925. The Turkish government yesterday sent to Teheran a note protesting against the arming and provisioning of the Kurdish tribes in Persia.

ALLEN TAKES ROLE OF PACT STEERSMAN

problematical. There must be 49 senators present each day to permit the Senate to function.

Another development last night was in the form of a statement by the Navy League of the United States, in part as follows:

"The Navy League of the United States, after careful consideration of the reasons which have been stated in favor of and against the London naval treaty, regrets that it cannot express approval of the treaty.

"The ratio of 5-5-3 for the navies of the United States, Great Britain and Japan, since the Washington treaty, has been adopted as the basis for the national naval policy. The ratio of 5-5-3 is abandoned in the London naval treaty.

"Prior to the London Conference of 1930, the United States had advocated that, with categories, each nation build the types of vessels it might deem best suited to its needs. The London naval treaty abandons that freedom of selection and calls for building by us of small-gun cruisers in excess of the amount hitherto approved in our naval policy.

"The ominous suggestion of progressive abandonment of our relative fleet strength and the debasement of its efficiency by developing types of comparatively limited use to us, is a matter of grave concern."

Senator Allen, in his statement, defends the treaty on all points.

"The treaty," he says, in concluding his statement, "is a logical, moderate step toward the ideal of armaments for police power only. It preserves for another six years the principle that permanent peace can be established only by progressive effects to stifle competitive armaments. It is worth much in its proof of the fact that the three great naval powers of the world, through their governments, have made a further advance in their common will for peace.

Focusing his criticism on the American admirals and Navy men who have found objections to naval provisions of the treaty, Senator Allen says:

"Opposition to the treaty in this country is not a matter of party politics. It comes from the Big Navy group, which has magnified the technical objections of the admiralty. Not a single one of these objections is important enough to justify a failure to ratify the treaty at once. Every one of them has been raised by the general board of the Navy before the London conference convened and had been fully presented to the American delegations when the treaty was negotiated."

Discusses Reed's Points.

Senator Allen discusses two points already stressed by Senator Reed. One is that the objections in Great Britain and Japan to the past afford proof of a fair bargain to all three powers.

The other point is that the British and Japanese delegations were impressed with the American negotiators at London to such an extent that both Great Britain and Japan willingly agreed to themselves refrain from building, while permitting the United States to embark upon a competitive building program for the purpose of catching up to them.

"It is an undisputed fact," says Senator Allen, "that the treaty puts a curb on further tonnage expansion of the British and Japanese navies, while giving the American Navy the privilege of building up its relative strength."

5 on Jugoslav Steamer Are Killed in Collision

Zara, Italy, July 6 (A.P.).—Five persons were killed today and seventeen injured out of 400 passengers aboard the Jugoslav steamer Karageorgevitch in a collision with the Italian motor ship Francesco Morosini. The Karageorgevitch was beached near Pasman, badly damaged. Marine authorities believed, however, that she could be refloated. The Francesco Morosini took aboard the bodies of the dead. The injured as well as the rest of the Karageorgevitch passengers and crew were brought here.

Available shipping records fail to list a Jugoslav steamer Karageorgevich. Lloyd's Register of Shipping, however, lists a 1,204-ton Jugoslav steamer Karadjordje, formerly the Karajorgje. She was built in 1913.

Samaritan of Leper Colony 44 Years Sent to Hospital

Brother Joseph, Civil War Veteran, Guards Secret of Secluded Life

IRA DUTTON.

Honolulu, July 6 (A.P.).—Ira Dutton, bearing the ecclesiastical name of Brother Joseph and known as the "Samaritan of Molokai," rested here today at St. Francis' Hospital, a feeble, broken man.

In 1886, a comparatively young man, Brother Joseph went to the little leper village of Kalawao, on the Island of Molokai. He labored among the colony's inmates for 44 years and surrendered his cloistered life only when health board officials obtained his promise to come to Honolulu for medical attention.

Why he chose the secluded colony has never been learned. To Brother Joseph it is a secret of which he never speaks. Brother Joseph soon will undergo an operation on his eyes. A year ago he had cataracts removed on the island, but conditions here are more favorable for medical treatment.

He arrived from Molokai yesterday by steamer, so weak he was carried from the boat to an automobile. His failing eyesight prevented him from seeing the city which he last saw 44 years ago. .. ..

Brother Joseph was born at Stowe, Vt., April 27, 1843. In 1861 he enlisted as a private in Company B, Thirteenth Wisconsin Infantry, for service in the Civil War. He won promotions to the rank of captain.

After the war he aided the Government in collecting and burying the bodies of fallen comrades. He devoted years to assisting comrades who came out of the war broken in health and unable to earn a living.

He settled in Tennessee and became successful in business, leading an active social life. Suddenly he dropped his worldliness and turned to holiness. H joind th Catholic Church, entering the Trappist Monastery at Gethsemane, Ky.

Two years later, while in Louisiana, he heard of the sacrifices of Father Damien among the lepers of Molokai Island. A few months later he was on his way to the colony.

Three years after his arrival at Molokai, Father Damien died. Brother Joseph took up the work of administrating the colony.

By scrupulous care and cleanliness, Brother Joseph managed to escape the dread disease to which he ministered. Age and his constant labors, however, appear finally to have gained the upper hand. Brother Joseph is 87.

$15,000,000 PROPAGANDA PLAN OF DRY LEAGUE IN 1928 SHOWN

formally approved in 1921—whereby each member of the league was to "snoop" on his neighbors and report to the police—had been superseded in 1929 by a plan for the establishment of a "key men" system in each community for the same purpose.

The league's propaganda campaign, which was to be carried on in cooperation with the World League Against Alcoholism, is outlined in documents relating to the meeting of the Anti-Saloon League administrative committee in New York, February 21, 1928. Some of the items it included were as follows:

$250,000 for placing prohibition literature in 5,000 public libraries.

$250,000 for "follow-up campaign," including correspondence literature, &c., with 25 good people in the locality of each public library, whose relationship to the library will help to stir up interest in making the best possible use of these publications."

$1,250,000 to place prohibition literature in 25,000 high school libraries.

$625,000 for "follow-up correspondence with teachers and superintendents to insure proper use of books and publications in high school libraries."

$75,000 for Grade Schools.

$75,000 for grade schools, "school books and teaching programs to be handled through the machinery of the Scientific Temperance Federation."

$125,000 for "American bond organization and literature."

$50,000 for reference books to be placed in 1,000 college, university and normal school libraries.

$75,000 for "correspondence and literature to five good persons in each college."

$100,000 for "visitation, six men, entire time, salaries and expenses."

$75,000 for "literature, magazines, books to 15,000 especially selected student leaders throughout the United States."

$75,000 for "picked group conferences of leaders at luncheons in 100 carefully selected centers in the United States."

$100,000 for "radio, 200 addresses from the best platform talent obtainable to be broadcast during the year at a total cost of $100 each."

Foreigners Provided For.

$625,000 for "foreign language groups, newspaper editors, group leaders, social settlement workers and religious leaders, to the total number of 25,000 in the United States representing 25,000,000 foreign language population in the United States."

Five million dollars for "200,000 preachers to be reached by periodical year books, pamphlets, tracts, special suggestions, and special arguments, $5 each."

Six million and two hundred and fifty thousand dollars for "250,000 Sunday School superintendents' material and suggestions for temperance Sunday."

Seventy-five thousand dollars for "moving pictures, development of scenarios properly applicable to the educational campaign against alcoholism and the securing of films to be loaned or rented to church organizations, civic bodies and others who will make use of the same in general temperence work."

The total for all the religious and other similar projects was fixed at $15,475,500 for the five-year period.

Laid Plans for Presidential Race.

As early as May 19, 1927, more than a year before the nominating conventions, the league was laying plans for the 1928 presidential campaign. The minutes of an executive committee meeting held on that date record that "Dr. Wheeler (the late Wayne B. Wheeler) requested that the question of the 1928 campaign be taken up.

"Upon rtcommendation of Dr. McBride, Dr. Wheeler's request was agreed to by common consent. Dr. Wheeler presented a paper containing three recommendations."

The lobby committee record, referring to the paper presented by Dr. Wheeler, contains the notation, "missing from minute book."

During the same meeting the league formally told President Coolidge that only drys need apply in 1928.

Old Position Reaffirmed.

A resolution was adopted declaring that—

"The executive committee of the Antisaloon League of America reaffirms it historic position and policy of the league, that we will support for nomination and election to the Presidency and to all other legislative and enforcement offices only such candidates that are unquestionably favorable to prohibition, State and national, to the preservation of the Constitution and to the effective enforcement of all supporting legislation."

Then "it was moved that a committee be appointed to take this resolution to the President. The motion was adopted."

The league was jubilant over the results of the 1928 campaign and Dr. McBride, the general superintendent, reporting to the executive committee at Atlantic City November 15, 1928, recorded that rejoicing as follows:

"The South was challenged in this campaign as in no other period of the prohibition fight, and the South that led in bring about prohibition met the challenge and made good. Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina, Florida, Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Tennessee all stood for Herbert Hoover. Too much credit can not be given to Bishop Cannon and Dr. A. J. Barton for their splendid leadership beginning at the Houston convention and ending with election on November 6.

"Our State superintendents in every Southern State have rendered heroic service. There was not a single exception among them. Every man, whether he had a chance to win or not, made a heroic fight, cooperating with the anti-Smith movement as far as the league's nonpartisan principles would permit him to do so."

On March 5, 1929, the day after Mr. Hoover was inaugurated, the league executive committee met in Washington to rejoice, and listened to the reading of a telegram from its founder, Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, suggesting that the league "send a group to tell the President we shall bac: his program to the uttermost. God's man for the hour is here. God help us to help."

System Succeeded in Iowa.

It was the same Dr. Russell of whom the league board of directors in Chicago, November 5, 1925, solemnly recorded that "every step in his career has evidenced divine guidance," who proposed the "key man" system to take the place of the individual members' report system, which had proved to be unsatisfactory.

In his recommendations to the executive committee March 5, 1929, Dr. Russell declared the "key man" system had proved successful in Iowa.

"It is now about thre years since the State League in Iowa, under the direction of Superintendent McNaught, took steps to form an Anti-Saloon commitee in each and every church in the State," Mr. Russell declared. "The Iowa organization was built, as the coming organization. Briefly stated, the Iowa county organization is made up of key men and designated officers in the churches of every county.

Honesty and Fairness Asked.

"They key man is selected by the state superintendent from a list of names secured while conferring with the leaders, politically and religiously, in the county. He must be a man, not a clergyman nor an officeholder. He must be a man who is recognized as being thoroughly familiar with the county situation, but not a biased partisan. He should have a fair general knowledge of the country, should be honest, unprejudiced and capable of keepink his own counsel.

"The key man is asked to furnish the point of contact that enables the State office of the league to reach any situation that might develop in the community. For example, if the State superintendent wishes to know the attitude of a certain candidate upon the prohibition question, he goes to the key man. If he knows, well and good. If he does not, the key man is asked to direct the superintendent to some one who is reliable and who is able to furnish the information.

In other words, the key man is always able to give information or to direct the superintendent to some one who can give information upon any situation. The name of the key man is not made public. He may be seen at his office or place of business for confidential counsel, and he may be consulted confidentially as to general or specific conditions of affairs in his community and county."

Financial Troubles Set Out.

The league's financial status was apparently not so roseate as might be inferred from the consideration given the $15,000,000 campaign. A statement dated December 31, 1927, shows arrears of $32,796.60 in salaries due its national officials. According to this statement, on that date, there was $4,487.50 due Dr. McBride, $31,-114.79 to Dr. Russell and $2,944.41 to Dr. Wheeler.

However, the tSate leagues also had their difficulties, as shown by a letter from Arthur J. Davis, State superintendent for New York, to H. B. Sowers, business manager of the American Issue Publishing Co., which publishes the league literature.

Mr. Sowers was seeking to collect money due from the New York League, and, on May 24, 1928, Mr. Davis wrote: "Plans for raising a very substantial amount of money to help both the State League and the National League were completely nullified, because of the Kresge matter, and the unwillingness of a number of wealthy men, who are much interested in the dry cause, to be in any way associated with Mr. Kresge. I think their position was hardly justified, but, nevertheless, they simply balked.

"We have been carrying on as best we could and exerting ourselves to the utmost along final lines.

"Now it is absolutely futile for me to promise to make remittances in keeping with your suggestion, which is entirely reasonable from every ordinary standpoint.

"As I intimated some time ago, the very best we can do is to first pay bills which by their very nature demand attention, or the league must go out of business, and we are finding it exceedingly difficult to accomplish this."

13 OF 15 BALLOONS DOWN IN CONTEST

Navy Bag Comes to Earth in Tennessee; Detroit Entrant Lands in Kentucky.

10 GROUNDED BY STORMS

Houston, Tex., July 6 (A.P.).—Thirteen balloons of 15 which set out on the national elimination race from Houston Friday were down and out of the running this afternoon and two others, at last reports, were floating northeastward to eastward over Kentucky.

The bags still in the air at last reports were the Goodyear-Zeppelin, Akron, Ohio, and the United Van Service of Cleveland. They had traveled miles farther than any of the ballons which landed.

Thunderstorms in a 75-mile area around Texarkana brought ten to earth late yesterday, despite the desperate hostages which at least some of the pilots gave to fortune by throwing away all available ballast. One, Dr. George Legalle, in the Kelvinator of Detroit, even cut away part of his basket, after throwing away "food and such equipment," the headquarters race committee here was advised early this morning. Warmed by Dr. Legalle's gallant stand against the elements, Capt. Fred S. Wilbur, secretary of the committee, sent him a wire of congratulation.

The City of Houston, piloted by Sergt. Otto Weinecke, of San Antonio, with W. N. Fox, of Houston, as aid, was the tenth to report its descent. The City of Houston came down at Hochatown, Okla., about 75 miles northeast of Texarkana, at 6:45 p. m. yesterday, the committee was advised by wire today.

The eleventh was the Navy entrant piloted by Lieut. W. Bushnell, with Lieut. J. A. Greenwald as aid, which came down at 10:40 a. m. today at Piggott in the northeast corner of Arkansas.

The twelfth to land was the U. S. Navy balloon, Lieut. T. G. W. Settle pilot and Lieut. R. G. Mayer aid, which came down 7 miles north of Dover, Tenn., at 12:10 p. m. Central standard time today.

The Detroit Times entrant landed 8½ miles south of Russellville, Ky., at 2:55 p. m. today, said a wire received at 6 p. m. at control headquarters.

Two sat down in Texas—the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, C. H. Roth, pilot, and W. P. Carey, aid, and the Army entrant piloted by Lieut. W. R. Turnbull with Lieut. C. M. Brown as aid.

Those which landed yesterday in Arkansas: General Electric, Cleveland, S. A. U., Rasmussen and T. W. Southworth; Detroit Aircraft, first to descend, W. A. Klikoff and R. S. Cunningham; Kelvinator, Detroit, Dr. Le Galle and R. W. Ebert; Army, Lieuts. W. D. Bule and J. P. Kidwell; Army, Capt. K. S. Axtater and Lieut. R. E. Holmes; Aero Digest, New York, S. T. Moore and Lieut. W. O. Eareckson; Navy, Lieut. R. R. Dennett and C. F. Miller.

The balloons over Kentucky were in and around the Paducah, Ky., and Cairo, Ill., area some 700 miles northeast of here, at about 7 o'clock this morning, according to wires received at headquarters. R. J. Blair and F. A. Trotter in the Goodyear-Zeppelin of Akron, Ohio, were over Cairo at 7:33 a. m.; George Hineman and Milford Vanik, in the United Van Service of Cleveland, dropped a message at Paducah in which they had sighted E. J. Hill and A. C. Schlosser in the Detroit Times at a high altitude moving east.

Hineman and Vanik reported, in addition, that they had lost ballast and gas "getting away from a farmer in Arkansas who seemed determined to shoot us, eight bullets whistling past the bag." It was the second report of such treatment, the Aero Digest having been fired on unsuccessfully near Conroe, Tex.

Lieut. Taynie McCormick, of Fort Sill, Okla., operations officer of the Army crews, believed this afternoon that the balloons would not have enough gas to get over the Allegheny Mountains, and possibly would drift down a "trough" directly east from the last reported position directly toward the Marvland and Virginia coast.

The two among the fifteen which land at the greatest distance away from Houston will join Ward Van Orman on the American team to participate in the international race, to begin September 1 in Cleveland. In addition, the first-place winner will receive the Litchfield Trophy and a $1,000 cash prize. There are six other cash prizes, ranging from $800 down to $100.

CURRENT EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

POLLARD DESCRIBES STATE ROAD SYSTEM

"Pay-as-You-Go" Plan Is Outlined to Convention in Oklahoma City.

9,000 MILES ARE GOAL

Richmond, Va., July 6 (A.P.).—Virginia's successful use of the "pay-as-you-go" method to build a highway system which within the next two years will include approximately 9,000 miles of good roads is reviewed in a statement from Gov. John Garland Pollard to be submitted to the United States Good Roads Association convention, which opens tomorrow at Oklahoma City, Okla.

"The State highway system was established in 1918, consisting of approximately 4,000 miles," says the governor's statement. "In 1919, a commission was formed whose duty it was to establish the routes if there was an appeal from the selection made by the commissioner.

"The Legislature of 1922 reformed the commission giving it power to operate the department and other duties. The reorganization plan provided for dividing the State into eight construction districts and the allocation of funds to these construction districts on an equitable basis.

Gas Tax Provided.

"Other legislation provided for a gas tax and the taking over of all State highways for maintenance and setting aside the automobile license fees for this purpose. The question of whether the financing of road construction should be done by a bond issue or the pay-as-you-go plan was submitted to a vote of the people. The vote was heavily in favor of the pay-as-you-go plan.

"The mileage added under the 2½ per cent clause, which amounts to about 100 miles yearly, and additional mileage added by the Legislature, had increased the total mileage in the State system to 7,000 miles by the end of 1929. The last Legislature directed the taking in or further mileage that will bring the mileage up to approximately 9,000 miles in the next two years.

"There has been expended on this system for construction approximately $100,000,000, and there is available this year for construction $13,000,000 and between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 for maintenance, making a total of $19,000,000 for the fiscal year. This fund will increase annually, due to the increase in the number of motor vehicles and their consumption of gasoline, which will guarantee the progressive improvement of the entire mileage in the State system until all has been put in first-class condition.

29 Delegates Appointed.

"There is at the present time approximately $13,000,000 of construction under way and $3,000,000 of maintenance."

Twenty-nine delegates were appointed by Gov. Pollard to represent Virginia at the convention, as follows:

W. G. Wood, Roanoke; J. T. Heibert, Broadway; W. A. Fields, Castlewood; J. A. Eller, Marion; A. M. Oehsner, Spring Grove; W. H. Langhorne, Warrenton; T. M. Gathright, Covington; T. B. Sterrett, Warm Springs; S. H. Saunders, Bedford; R. S. Chamberlin, Phenix; J. R. Beck, Butterworth; R. C. Lee, Hampton; T. B. Glascock, Upperville; W. R. Cato, North Emporia; Gilbert A. Rhodes, Lexington; James S. Easley, Halifax; O. M. Nockols, Richmond; J. W. Hevener, Hightown; H. C. Rogers, Hamilton; D. K. Lucas, East Radford; J. P. Bostick, Burkeville; Dr. W. M. WORK TO COST $180,000

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

The public relations committee of the Chamber of Commerce of Alexandria is taking a decided interest in the awarding of the contract for the building of the new postoffice building. There were three bids submitted, the lowest being that of a firm from Raleigh, N. C., and the business manager of the chamber of commerce, Dan S. Hollenga, headed a committee which called on Perry K. Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, to urge that the contract be given to a concern which would employ local labor.

Mr. Hollenga has estimated that the labor on the new building will cost approximately $100,000, and that the necessary subcontracts, which would be let locally, would amount to approximately $80,000. If this work could be given to Alexandria men it would go far toward relieving the unemployment situation here, which is becoming acute.

Mr. Hollenga assumed the duties of his new position July 1, and his first action was to interest himself in the question of the labor involved in the construction of the new Federal building, which is the most important project that has been faced by Alexandria for many years.

The monthly meeting of the officers and teachers council of the Sunday School of the Second Presbyterian Church will be held at 7:30 o'clock this evening in the Westminster Building.

Circle No. 3 of the women's auxiliary of the church will meet at the home of Mrs. Joseph Newell, Russell road, Braddock, at 8 o'clock this evening.

The Allison W. C. T. U. will hold a meeting this evening with Mrs. C. W. Houston, 219 North Columbus street.

DISTRICT MAN FACES CHARGE IN FAIRFAX

Released on $500 Bond in Possession of Liquor Case in County.

TRADE GROUP TO MEET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 345, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

E. M. Baggett, 38, of the 400 block, Massachusetts avenue northwest, is at liberty on a $500 bond on a charge of possession of half a gallon of liquor. Baggett, his wife and George Murphy, 28, of Lorton, were arrested by Fairfax County authorities late Saturday night at the Franconia dance hall. They were all charged with drinking in public. A later search of the Baggett car revealed the alleged liquor. Mrs. Baggett and Murphy were released on collateral.

Thurston Henry, of Franconia; Albert Grimsley, of Lorton, and Claude Hickman, of Quantico, also were arrested at the Franconia dance hall and charged with being drunk. Hickman and Grimsley were released after paying fines, and Henry was lodged in the Fairfax County Jail.

Deputy Sheriff Vernon Cockerill, of Herndon, arrested LeRoy Grason, colored, 13, of Herndon, on a charge of housebreaking. It is alleged that he has broken into several houses in Herndon in the last few days.

The deacons of the Columbia Baptist Church at Falls Church will hold a meeting this evening at the home of J. L. Shotwell, on Broad street, for a preliminary discussion of the business that will be transacted at the quarterly business meeting of the church Wednesday night.

The Fairfax Chamber of Commerce will meet Tuesday night in the auditorium of the school at Annandale. The annual election of the officers will be held at this time. The directors of the chamber, whose terms of office expire at this time, will include Miss Ludena Sayre, of Centerville, district; Harvey Clapp, of the Mount Vernon district; J. H. Beattie, of Providence district; Benjamin F. Nevitt, of Lee district; Mrs. G. Ashley Money, of Dranesville district, and William Cleveland, of Falls Church. The terms of Merton E. Church, of Falls Church, and Edmond H. Allan, of Newington, as directors at large, also will expire.

The committee in charge of the Volunteer Fire Department carnival at Fairfax, which was held last week, reports gross receipts amounting to $1,283.75. The lumber for the stands cost approximately $300. This is considered a permanent investment, as the stands were built in such a manner that they can be taken apart and used again for several years. It is expected that the carnival will show about $700 profit. The pledge committee, headed by John M. Whalan, reports that it has succeeded in raising about $410. This money will be used to assist in paying off the notes due in August on fire apparatus.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fairfax County School Board will be held today in the board room at the county court house. It is expected that several delegations will appear protesting the closing of several of the one and two room schools, located in the various communities. This action was taken at the last meeting of the board, and provision for transporting the pupils to other schools was made.

Chesterbrook Methodist Sunday School Council will hold a meeting at the home of Mrs. Carl McIntosh this evening. Plans will be made at this time for the annual Sunday school picnic.

Workmen are engaged in building a brick wall around the Mount Vernon estate adjoining the parking grounds. The grading for the new plaza at the entrance has been completed, and during the heavy rains last week many automobiles were mired in the soft dirt of the parking grounds. It is expected that this place will be hard-surfaced before fall.

Miss Emma Janes will act as leader in the organization of a Junior Auxiliary of the St. Mary's Church at McLean this afternoon. It is planned to hold regular meetings every Monday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock in the parish hall. The teachers of the Sunday school will assist Miss Janes in the work.

There will be a meeting of the McLean School and Community League this evening in the town hall. Plans will be formulated at this time for the annual carnival which is to be held from August 2 to 9, inclusive. The members also will discuss the improvements which they mean to make toward improving the school grounds and make plans for the landscaping of the grounds, the work to be started early this fall.

The Corban Club, of the Congregational Church, at Herndon, will meet tomorrow afternoon. The ladies will work on the fancy work for their annual bazaar. The date of the bazaar will be set within the next month.

Girl and Man Shot; Note Hints at Pact

Young Woman Dead When Found; Companion Is Believed Dying.

Butler, N. J., July 6 (A.P.).—A girl was dead today and a man was in St. Joseph's Hospital, Paterson, with a bullet hole in his head as a result of what police believe was a suicide pact. The body of Jennie Brauer, of Brooklyn, was found last night in an automobile about 200 yards off Marion road, near Echo Lake, with a bullet in her brain. Beside the body was a note which read:

"Fate denied us the right to happiness in life, so we shall happily be dead. We hope our friends can now realize the existence, of a real love."

It was signed "Roderick and Jennie."

State troopers who searched the woods found Roderick Meakle, of Ridgewood, wandering with a bullet wound in his head. He was taken to the hospital. Little hope is felt for his life.

financially sound, with a balanced budget and government loans oversubscribed, but materially improved in its internal situation.

Not only the business community but the bulk of public opinion apparently opposed an armed rising at a moment when Portugal is enjoying the fruit of prolonged stability.

As Col. Almeida had won laurels in Portugal's African wars, his assumption of the leadership of the conspiracy and association with elements hostile to the dictatorship were widely condemned.

Semiofficial quarters said the recent overtures of the Oliveira cabinet to patriotic politicians for help in restoring constitutional normality had led the opponents of the dictatorship to believe the call for union was a sign of weakness.

The present Portuguese cabinet, formed January 20, 1930, is headed by Gen. Domingos de Oliveira, and is composed chiefly of clericals and moderate republicans.

President Carmona was elected in March, 1928.

VIRGINIA'S VACATION HIGHWAYS ARE GOOD

Roads to Seashore Towns and Mountain Resorts Are in Good Repair.

WEEKLY REPORT ISSUED

Richmond, Va., July 6 (A.P.).—Vacationists who wish to visit the beaches of Virginia during the hot days ahead will find the highways good, says the weekly report of conditions issued by the State Highway Department.

From Richmond to Norfolk over U. S. Route 60, through Williamsburg and Newport News, about 86 miles, the road is in good condition all the way. From Richmond through Hopewell and Smithfield to Portsmouth the driving distance is about 95 miles to Norfolk. It is all hard-surfaced.

Down the Tidewater Trail over U. S. Route 17, from Fredericksburg through Tappahannock, Saluda and Gloucester, traffic is being cared for over construction, but part is rough and dusty.

Danville to Norfolk.

Along Route 12, from Danville to Norfolk via Halifax, Chase City, Boydton, South Hill, Lawrenceville, Emporia, Courtland and Suffolk, about 220 miles, all is hard-surfaced except two miles near Lawrenceville, and this short stretch is in good condition.

The Richmond-Danville highway through Amelia, Burkeville, Keysville and Halifax is in good condition, its only drawback being about two miles near Clover, which is dusty.

Work between Warsaw and Kilmarnock was completed last week, and from Richmond to Tappahannock and Warsaw, over Route 13, and from Warsaw, over to Route 37, is now all hard-surfaced.

Mountain Routes Good, Too.

The roads leading to and through the mountains are practically all good. U. S. Route 340 coming into Virginia from Harper's Ferry and Charles Town, W. Va., which has been under construction, is now completed and its detour abandoned.

From Winchester down the Shenandoah Valley to Staunton, U. S. Route 11 is good. From Staunton on down the great Valley of Virginia to Bristol very little construction is being done and no oiling, and the road will be found in good condition. The only detour along the 350 miles of the Valley pike is between Dublin and Pulaski, where the road is closed on account of construction. This detour is 8 miles long, about half hard-surfaced and the remainder good dirt road.

Along the Lee highway from Washington, through Warrenton and Sperryville to New Market, a great deal of construction is under way and the road is rough in places for about 25 miles. U. S. Route 50 to Winchester and then down the Valley pike is recommended by the highway department.

be the first to make the west-east ocean passage in 1930, crashed from a low altitude in attempting to take off on a test flight to Harbor Grace.

He was slightly injured and his plane, which had been groomed for the long sea hop, was destroyed by fire.

From a height of 20 feet, the plane nose-dived, hit the ground hard and burst into flame. Braving the fire, onlookers forced the door open and dragged the airman out. He was burned and cut but doctors said he would soon recover.

His plane, which had a capacity of 150 gallons of gasoline and an estimated cruising radius of 3,500 miles, was assembled on Lester's Field here, where Alcock and Brown took off in 1919 to make the first successful airplane crossing of the North Atlantic.

Maj. Wynne-Eyton, of the British Royal Air Force Reserve, arrived here on June 30. He brought a new type De Haviland Puss Moth plane, especially constructed for the transatlantic flight. His plans were to take off July 10 from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, for Baldonnel Airdrome at Dublin, and thence to London.

Maj. Wynne-Eyton has had sixteen years' flying experience, and flew on the western front during the World War and also in Africa and India. He is 42 years old and holds the distinguished service order.

NEW TRANSPORT SYSTEM.

"In the aggregate," said President Hoover in a statement regarding the rivers and harbors act, "this inland waterway undertaking represents a larger project than even the Panama Canal. It will provide employment for thousands of men. It should be fruitful of decreased transportation charges on bulk goods, should bring great benefits to our farms and to our industries, and should result in a better distribution of population away from congested centers." The $145,000,000 rivers and harbors bill authorizes work on 170 distinct projects over a period ranging from one to fifteen years.

The Nation's rivers provide a natural transportation system upon which bulky goods can be moved with reasonable dispatch and at low cost. For many years the Government has been engaged upon their improvement, the work having been prosecuted piecemeal but with regard to the future development of a comprehensive waterways system. The time now has arrived when it is possible to begin tying the scattered units of the system into a whole. When completed, the waterways system will be some 12,000 miles long, and will establish connections between such important cities as New Orleans, Memphis, Knoxville, Chattanooga, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha and Sioux City, Keokuk, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, Evansville, Cincinnati, Wheeling and Pittsburgh. Through the Great Lakes and the Erie Canal the system will be linked with the Atlantic, and through the Port of New Orleans with the gulf. Products of the rich area drained by the Mississippi system will be moved at minimum cost on modern barge trains to ocean ports for world distribution and cargoes from the steamers that ply the seven seas will be picked up for distribution on the return barge-train trip throughout the great central West.

A conception of the economic value of river improvement may be gleaned from the story of the improvement of the Ohio River. Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Louisville and the other cities on the banks of the Ohio were located by their founders because of the fine transportation facilities afforded by the river. But when steamboat navigation began, 120 years ago, it soon became apparent that the channel that had served admirably for barges would require deepening for steamers. As early as 1835 it was proposed that this work be done, but it was not until after the era of railway expansion that the work got under way; and it was not until 1910 that Congress authorized the comprehensive program of dredging, damming and locking the Ohio that was completed in the fall of 1929. More than $125,000,000 was expended in improving the Ohio, until now there is available a uniform 9-foot channel for year-round transportation.

In 1917, when the Ohio project was only partially completed, 4,600,000 tons of freight were borne on the broad bosom of the stream. By 1925 the volume had increased to 15,700,000 tons, and in 1928 to 20,900,000 tons, or twice the volume cleared through the Panama Canal in the same year. The value of cargoes in 1928 aggregated $750,000,000. These cargoes were floated cheaply and they reached their destinations expeditiously.

The projects authorized in the rivers and harbors bill that has now become law will bring the benefits of waterway transportation to the whole country. Operated in conjunction with the railways, the waterways are destined to reduce the cost of living, to stand forever as a secondary transportation system for the national defense, and to tie all parts of the Nation more closely together. Their cost is not an expense but a profitable investment. The rivers and harbors act of 1930 is a monument to Congress and the President.

ASIATIC DEVELOPMENT.

Henry Ford's interest in developing a market in Asia is of importance to the entire country. The Dearborn manufacturer has an unparalleled grasp of the world business situation; when he determines that profits are to be found in a hitherto undeveloped market he tips off all industry as to where to look for purchasers of its wares. Today the world is in the grip of industrial depression. Industry everywhere, but particularly in the United States, is casting about for markets for its surplus production. In Asia there dwell 1,000,000,000 souls—one-half of the world's population—but the producing nations have made only the most feeble attempts to develop this great potential market.

One of the reasons why this development has not been more rapid is that the Asiatic is virtually a stranger to the American. He remains the person of mystery that he was in the days before the advent of the steamship. His habits, his civilization, his customs and his personality have been explored only by the comparative handful of Americans who have traveled in the Far East. The press of the Americas is in close contact with the nations of Europe, but it largely ignores the news of Asia. The first requisite to large-scale business dealings is knowledge of the customer. Hence intensive cultivation of the Asiatic market must be preceded by development of intercommunication between the continents.

One factor that stands in the way of development of Asiatic news sources is the practically prohibitive cable rates across the Pacific. It costs the North American continent 40 cents a word to talk with Asia, one reason for the excessive cost being that when foreign cable companies put their wires into Japan they are required to turn the ends over to the Japanese government, which operates them in an antiquated, expensive fashion. It would be to Japan's interest to permit communication companies to operate their own business, or, at least, to reform the government's communication machine so that news and business messages may flow freely and cheaply across the Pacific.

The renaissance of Asia would be accompanied by increased earning power and improved standards of living. Modernization of that vast continent would immensely benefit the world.

UNIFIED BORDER PATROL.

Unification of the border patrol is an important part of the general program of better law enforcement. The bill providing for unification passed the House but reached the Senate too late for action at the session just ended. It is aimed against the smuggling of aliens, property or liquor into the United States. Advocates of the proposal contend, with a good deal of logic, that it will also make transit between this and neighboring countries more convenient for the public.

At present the immigration laws are enforced by a group of officers under the Department of Labor. Customs regulations and the antismuggling laws are administered by an entirely different force under the Treasury Department. These and perhaps other patrol units on the borders would be brought together into a single organization under the Treasury Department. One Assistant Secretary of the Treasury would be in charge of both the border patrol and the Coast Guard, as well as the collection of customs. The President would be authorized to include all the agencies patrolling the border in this single unit. But it is anticipated that the Department of Agriculture would be allowed to maintain its separate force of inspectors, because of the technical nature of their work and the necessity of frequent transfers to administer quarantine laws.

The President would be authorized to designate ports of entry at all the leading border crossings, and it would become unlawful to cross the border except at those points. Under the present law no one may lawfully cross the border without reporting to a customs office, unless he be on foot and without any merchandise. Any one bringing any goods whatever across the border is required to report, even though the custom house may be 50 miles from the international line. Under the proposed new arrangement customhouses will be at the border. It should be no inconvenience to cross at the designated points. Exceptions are made for persons living near the border and for persons crossing in small boats, &c. The unified patrol is not designed to burden with red tape persons who frequently cross into Canada or Mexico, but to put a stop to the illegal entry of aliens and smuggled goods.

Only those agencies which can be harmoniously unified under one patrol need be included in the new organization. The new force will not be a miniature army, but a civil service organization. An increased number of customs offices and border patrolmen should improve service to the public as well as curb violations of the law.

NATIONAL SCHOOL OF ART.

The growing interest in American art is manifest in the demand for a national school of the fine arts in Washington. For many years patrons of art have dreamed of a national institution devoted to its cultivation, and now their dream is spurring them to action. The movement is timely. America is making rapid strides in the creation as well as the appreciation of art. Europe for centuries has been the artistic center of the world, but America is now making a strong bid for that distinction. Cultivation of the arts nearly always follows the attainment of national prosperity. The United States is in a better position to foster artistic creation than any other country.

Greater artistic production would be a boon to America. Quite aside from the cultural and spiritual values involved there is an economic question to be considered. More than any other nation America depends upon machines to do its toil. Human hands are released for other tasks. Intensive development of the arts would provide a new outlet for human energy—not that the mechanic thrown out of work should begin painting pictures, but that the man of artistic genius who would otherwise be engaged in business may find opportunity to employ his talents.

It is good economy to turn human energy not needed for production of the necessities of life into the creation of beautiful things. This can not be accomplished in a day or a decade. Art and appreciation of art grow only out of long tradition, culture and education. In view of the important place that the arts are certain to occupy in the life of an advanced nation, this country can not begin too soon to cultivate the latent talents of its people.

Joseph H. Freelander, sponsor of the project for a national school of the fine arts, visions an institution erected and maintained by the Government. It would include departments of painting, sculpture, architecture, music, drama and the industrial arts. A limited number of students would be admitted annually through competitive examinations. The institution would be maintained at public expense, as an investment in the cultural progress of the Nation.

Whether or not the Government will undertake to endow a college of the arts, the need for a national institution is undeniable. A private endowment might be better than Government control. This idea offers a wonderful opportunity for wealthy devotees of art. A fortune gained by industrial development of the past could not be better used than in artistic cultivation for the future. The country will turn to beauty as the leisure of its people is increased. In the field of art lie opportunities for countless Americans of the new age. The facility with which necessaries and luxuries are produced need not mean idleness or unemployment for future generations. But patience, foresight and money are necessary to provide means for the training and culture that will be required to open these new fields of glorious achievement to ambitious youth.

THE RIGHT OF SECESSION

From Time.

Hot wisps of fire and brimstone oratory sulphured the news from Cape Town last week. It appeared that South Africa's two greatest statesmen had been pitchforking at each other in parliament on an issue which vitally concerns the whole empire: "Does dominion status include the right of secession?"

Just back from a visit "up above," which included London and New York, former Prime Minister Jan Christian Smuts angered and astonished a majority of the Union of South Africa's House of Assembly (lower house) when he told them without mincing that they can not secede from the empire without the consent of Great Britain and every other dominion. If the Union of South Africa were competent to secede, he warned, then "Ireland would be competent to abolish the kingship (of George V in Ireland) or to substitute another royal house, and the result would tend inevitably to the disruption of the empire.

"We have had the question of secession before us here in South Africa," concluded Gen. Smuts suavely, "but that question has now been eliminated."

"If what you say is right," shouted Minister of Finance N. C. Havenga, white with anger, "this is not the end of secession, but it may well be the beginning of it!"

Shouldering his way to Mr. Havenga's side came the prime minister, Gen. Honorable James Barry Munnik Hertzog, bitter foe of Gen. Smuts. The constitution of Gen. Hertzog's violent Nationalist party used to contain a demand that Great Britain recognize the right of secession. This was stricken out only after the imperial conference at London in 1926 had invented what is called "Dominion Status." Returning to Cape Town after the conference, the prime minister announced that dominion status includes the right of secession, and secure in this right, South Africanders have been content not to use it. Squaring himself before the house, conscious that there will be another imperial conference within a few months at London, Gen. Hertzog fairly roared at Gen. Smuts: "The right of secession of any dominion is nothing less than the foundation stone, the very test, of its independence and freedom. Any dominion which gives up its right of secession or acknowledges that it has no right to secede has no right to talk of freedom."

The agitated house then passed an amendment recording that South Africa accepts the imperial conference declaration of 1926 solely in the sense that dominion status includes the right of secession. Academic though even so acrimonious a debate may seem, it is of burning importance and vital bearing on the Indian question. St. Gandhi has rejected all tentative offers of dominion status on the ground that in the form Great Britain would be prepared to offer it to India it would not include the right of secession. Therefore he launched his movement for independence. If South Africa now establishes that all dominions do and must have the right to secede, then what becomes of Sir John Simon's report and the promises of the viceroy, both committing Englishmen to the goal of dominion status for India? Thus far this mealy-mouthed phrase has been mere pap for dominions full of local pride but with no real wish to secede—most Canadians will freely deny that they have the right to do so, and all Englishmen will agree. Nobody really knows what "dominion status" means, but last week Daughter South Africa was trying her best to make it mean something as distasteful and troublesome as possible to Mother Britain.

In the end the praises said
Are but simple and but few.
This they mention of the dead:
He was gentle; he was true.

Those who loved him, teary eyed
Find his glory and success
Not in stately pomp and pride
But in kindly thoughtfulness.

In sad groups his neighbors stand
Having only this to say:
They will miss the friendly hand
Waved in greeting, day by day.

Some remember he was kind,
Some remember he was true.

Little deeds he used to do.

All the praises of a man
Which in mourning we rehearse
Are of something finer than
Things of pocket and of purse.

Stage Clothes Don't Impress the Boy Who Has Seen Actors Pawning Watches.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN a young mother looks at her small son, she says: "I hope you will grow up to be a great and good man. I shall do all I can to prepare you, and make every necessary sacrifice to give you a fair chance. I hope and pray there will be no war to maim or kill you."

That is the universal prayer of motherhood, but it is a vain petition and vain it will remain until youth is taught to abominate war.

Those who know the sordid truth do not make war a second time, but they permit and encourage a false report of their experience and thus trick the coming generation into equal crime and folly.

In every land the school boy learns to believe his own country wholly right in every conflict.

He learns that war thus waged against an enemy of his country is a noble and romantic business—that all who share in it are heroes.

He is mentally trained for war.

His schooling tricks him, blinds him to the truth, and prepares him to be an eager victim.

Those who would save him must tell him the truth about war, for the truth makes men free.

If the authorities in every land refuse to provide truthful histories, let every mother paste in the front of her son's text book a clipping such as this:

"Wars slaughter young men to settle the quarrels of old men.

"Ambitious and selfish politicians lose their heads in the heat of argument and make threats of violence, knowing their own skins will be safe if conflict follows.

"When they declare war, they send other men out to fight one another.

"Young men are forced to quit their work or play and kill other young men they do not know or hate or even dislike.

"They are, of grim necessity now, taught discipline—which means they are bullied by 'superiors' and taught to obey without question as menials do.

"They endure hunger and cold; they are gnawed by vermin; they trample on torn and scattered bodies too long unburied; they suffer hardship and disease and terrible wounds, and when the war is finished they are neglected and forgotten.

"The war enriches older or slicker men who remain safely at home, but it achieves no other purpose.

"The 'enemies' aren't wicked monsters, but other young men; similarly fooled and exploited, who might be friends if they were not forced to obey the scheming politicians."

That is the only hope of peace.

The truth will make boys hate and dread warfare as the veteran on crutches now hates and dreads it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

American Foreign Policy Dictated by the People to Be Supplanted by "Foreign Office" Policy of the State Department?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In view of the dictatorial curb under which the Senate is expected to ratify the London naval treaty, it may be pertinent to inquire whether the foreign policy of the United States is to be changed overnight from a foreign policy of the people to a foreign policy of the Department of State? In other words, are we to have established here a "foreign office" in the Old World sense?

That the present Secretary of State would welcome some such change as this seems evident. It is evident in his contemptuous criticism of the Senate foreign relations committee, in his petulant disregard of constitutional requirements and his aspersion of naval officers, who know more about foreign relations and international law than he does.

Like a child with a new toy, the State Department had the Kellogg peace pact out for an airing last year, warning China and Russia that as signatories thereto they must avoid hostilities in Manchuria.

Thus we are made to understand that old-fashioned advice against intermeddling has no restraining force on the diplomatic arm of our Government, the idea being, evidently, that our "isolation" hitherto has kept us in the second-rate class and that we never will be a "world power" until we reach out beyond the Western Hemisphere and try to make straight the path of international brotherhood and world peace.

In the meantime it may be worth while to reiterate the fact that the treaty-making clause as well as the war-making clause, introduced as a check on executive initiative, was intended to forestall what the framers of the Constitution were disposed to consider the evils of the ancient, monarchical foreign-office system.

College Graduates Make Good in Repaying Loans Under Grand Rapids Plan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For 35 years the Grand Rapids High School Scholarship Association has been in existence. The purpose of the association is to maintain a fund to assist young men and women who graduate from Grand Rapids High School to complete their education by attending the University of Michigan.

The policy of the association is to loan the needed money on the sole security of the student's note, which must be given with the consent of his parents. About 12 or 15 students are helped each year. During the 38 years that the association has been in existence no money has been lost. Every student to whom money was loaned paid his debt eventually.

This record goes to show that the students who requested money from the association were in earnest about acquiring an education. They appreciated the assistance extended to them by this association. The majority of these students who were unable to go through college without financial aid must have devoted their entire efforts to succeeding, so that they would be able to get ahead and repay their benefactor.

Tom Thumb Golf Courses Appearing in Large Numbers—Vacant Lots Made Picturesque.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Less than a year ago the miniature golf course was not in existence in Washington. Since that time many of these places have made their appearance in all parts of the city. Some of them are in operation only during the day, while others are lighted and can be used at night. The exercise one gets when going the round of one of the small courses is not strenuous, yet it affords the players considerable diversion.

I have heard several people complain about these courses becoming so numerous. Others complain that the night players keep them awake. I think that the courses have their redeeming qualities. Before they made their appearance there were many vacant lots throughout the city that were eyesores. Now these small golf courses are being constructed on vacant lots, and they certainly present a very picturesque scene compared to what these same sites were before the courses were made.

Maybe the fad will die out eventually, but until it does the Tom Thumb courses will increase in number.

Tourists Visiting Washington Should Be Told About Taxation Situation. "This Is Your City."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To the Senate of the United States I would say: For your $500,000 iota added to the $9,000,000 lump-sum Federal tax, thanks awfully. It is exceedingly welcome as a definite indication that the fight for fairness in District taxation is on in good earnest.

This is not a complaint against the burden of taxation. Our citizens take pride in contributing liberally to the beauty of the Nation's city. In the same spirit by which they are actuated, it is only fair to think that the Congress should meet them half way.

From now on agitation for reform of our fiscal relationship with the National Government should continue in an appeal to the country at large.

By way of propaganda would it not bring good results to have printed a brief plea for fair play in the matter of District t xation? This to be headed "Your City," and placed in the hands of incoming tourists.

Play Contest Is Sponsored By Coolidges

Tournament One of Several Planned at Summer Colonies.

"The play's the thing" and despite outdoor sports and various social activities launched, with the real beginning of the summer season at Northern resorts, several of the colonies of society groups are planning Little Theater tournaments. Particular interest is evidenced in the Little Theater celebration planned at the Dorset Playhouse at Manchester-in-the Mountains, in Vermont, to which a distinguished list of patrons will lend their support.

Former President Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge head the list sponsoring the tournament which will take place on Friday and Saturday under the auspices of the Dorset Players. Others include Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Joseph P. Cotton, Gov. John E. Weeks of eVrmont and Mrs. Weeks, Dr. Paul D. Moody, of Middlebury College and Mrs. Moody and several others.

ton, Gov. John E. Weeks of Vermont towns will present plays in a competition for the Dorset Players' cup which is to be awarded this year for the first time.

The plays will be judged by Miss Edith Wynne Matthison and Mr. Charles Rann Kennedy.

Mother Announces Wedding Of Miss Henrietta Deckman.

Deckman, of Belair and Baltimore. After a wedding trip the couple will live at 105 South Dallam place, Belair.

Miss Katherine Hammond, of Washington and Columbus, Ga., who has passed the winter here at George Washington University Law School, returned last night from a visit with her sister, Dr. Gertrude Hammond, at Lothian, Md.

Mrs. Chaney Married at York Harbor

Granddaughter of Former Secretary of War Wed to Banker.

The marriage of Mrs. Josephine Alger Chaney, granddaughter of Russell A. Alger, of Michigan, former Secretary of War, and Mr. D. Dwight Douglas, president of the First National Bank of Detroit, took place on Saturday afternoon at the summer home of the bride's mother on Aldis Lane, York Harbor, Me.

Owing to the death last January of the bride's father, the ceremony was attended only by the immediate families. The Rev. W. H. Millinger, of the First Congregational Parish at York Village, officiated.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

GRASS, DANDELION AND OTHER FOLIAGE STAINS.

(Division of Textiles and Clothing.)

The green stains from grass or fresh foliage are due to chlorophyll, the coloring matter present in green plants. Use one of the following agents in removing stains of this character:

1. Hot water and soap—If the material is washable, use hot water and soap as in ordinary laundering, rubbing the stain vigorously. Remaining traces may be bleached out with Javelle water, if the material is cotton or linen, or potassium permanganate. These bleaches will remove the dark-brown stains caused by the juice of the dandelion.

2. Ether or wood or denatured alcohol—Apply by sponging. This is useful on fabrics that laundering might injure.

Hers to Command

An army to set her table

When the housewife tells A & P her needs—by her purchases in its stores—an army of men, trained to obey her will, stands at command.

And because great numbers of women who like good things and good values trade in A & P stores, the order of one housewife becomes the order of many. A vast association of housewives, A & P's customers, thus grows out of a single aim—good food at least cost.

The whole A & P army is at their command, and the buying of all these housewives—massed to serve each—gives to all the pick of every crop, of every food.

Growers and manufacturers know that only their best products at fair prices will satisfy this large body of consumers. In return, these industries are assured of regular sale of their goods.

So the housewife who shops at A & P is certain of the best; while her steady, thrifty buying supports honest food industries in every part of the country.

In shopping to her own advantage, she is helping the food producer.

300 CHURCH HEADS GATHER FOR SESSION

Anglican's Lambeth Conference Is Opened in London With Brilliant Rites.

SESSIONS TO BE SECRET

London, July 6 (A.P.).—The Lambeth conference was officially opened today with a special service at St. Paul's Cathedral, with 300 bishops and archbishops, representing the Anglican sect all over the world, taking part.

A note of oriental splendor was introduced by Patriarch Meletios, of Alexandria, known as "the second Pope," who was robed in pure white, and headed a procession of bearded, black-robed clergymen of the Eastern orthodox delegation. They marched down the center aisle of the church to take places in the choir stalls.

All the participating archbishops and bishops joined in holy communion, which was preceded by the litany, sung in procession. The Archbishop of Canterbury headed the procession, which filed out the south door of the Cathedral, reentering by the great main entrance to take seats for the rest of the service.

The Archbishop of York, delivering the sermon, stressed the need for churchmen to keep minor disagreements on church routine out of the way of the great issue of religion, namely, faith in the living God.

"It is especially important that we remind outselves of the proportions proper to our controversies in the light of the majesty of God," he said.

The Archbishop paid tribute to Lord Davidson, late Archbishop of Canterbury, who, he reminded his hearers, was present at five Lambeth conferences scattered over a period of 50 years. The conference meetings, which are expected to last several weeks, will be secret, although official statements will be made on the progress of the long agenda.

THE GIRL IN THE AIR

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Janet Decker—Eighteen, with closely cropped head of burnt gold and a pair of very large and quizzical eyes. The flying secretary for

Robert C. Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern Air Transportation Co., and the father of Dick Tolbert, a young official of Great Eastern, who has told Janet he loves her, and whom Janet loves. Unfortunately, Dick is engaged to Helen Morgan, a society girl, who sailed for Europe, but cabled that she was returning immediately. She is now due to arrive.

Hugh Temple, pilot for Great Eastern, and secretly in love with Janet. He has been captured, along with a huge shipment of money he was transporting by plane to a New York bank, and has only recently escaped. Janet is one of the few people who know of his return, however, as he is hiding, hoping to discover who the real leader of the gang is.

Henry Frenda, a clerk in the office of Great Eastern, and a friend of Janet's. He had lent her a book on aviation, which had been entrusted by Belter, his boss, for delivery to a Mr. Creil, wealthy boarder at the Penda home. In glancing through the book, Janet discovers a series of curious symbols, which had been scribbled on the back page. Henry is now in jail, held as a material witness in the murder of Belter, office manager for Great Eastern. He is found murdered in his office.

Miss Sears, Dick Tolbert's secretary.

Fred Turner, an automobile mechanic, who has been soft on Janet, but who has just told Margaret, Janet's little sister, that he loves her instead of Janet.

Janet rides to the airport with Hugh. Dick has gone to meet Helen Morgan, returning from Europe. On the way to the airport, Hugh intimates that Dick is fickle, and is constantly seeking new loves. Janet is disappointed in Hugh's attitude. She sits up until after midnight, waiting to receive a phone call from Dick, and goes to sleep while waiting; but no call comes.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIII.

"Janet! . . . What's the matter, child? Why didn't you go to bed?"

Janet opened her eyes and met her mother's anxious gaze. The sun was shining in the east window of the living room.

She sat up, stretched, yawned deeply and gave her mother's arm an affectionate pat. "I must have been awfully sleepy. The last I remember —No, I was dreaming, I suppose . . . What time is it?"

"Just 7. Your father's eating breakfast. You can go to your room and sleep another hour if you want to."

"I've slept plenty. Care if I have breakfast with Dad?"

"Of course not, but you'll have to hurry. He's a fast eater."

When Mrs. Decker had gone back to the kitchen, Janet rose and walked to the window. . . . It seemed impossible that she had dreamed it all. . . .

Why hadn't he come? . . . Perhaps it had been too late when he left Helen. But, then, he knew she would be waiting. He must have known that. Still——

"Oh, Jan . . .!"

Mr. Decker's muffled voice came to her from the kitchen. Abruptly she turned from the window and went to wash her face.

It was a day of interesting revelations to Janet. The first came about the middle of the morning. She had been taking dictation from Tolbert for more than an hour. At least she supposed she had been in his office for that purpose. As a matter of fact, she had taken four short letters that had come between conversation excursions in which Tolbert had talked of many things irrelevant to the moment. Hugh was scheduled to make a flight to Chicago and back in the next week, and Tolbert was undecided whether to go along. . . . An inventor was trying to interest him in a new wing slot. . . . Had Janet ever seen a professional hockey game? It was great sport. He had hoped to get down to Madison Square Garden for the match between the New York Americans and the Rangers and stay over for the automobile show; but he probably wouldn't make it. . . . Had she ever seen such weather in January? . . .

Then she had gone out into the little room where she and Miss Sears had their desks and found Hugh sitting in her chair, in conversation with Dick's secretary.

"Hello, Janet," he said pleasantly. "How are you?"

"Oke," she smiled. "You?"

"Great, thanks." He transferred himself to the edge of Miss Sears's desk and the conversation Janet had interrupted was resumed. Janet sat at her own desk and proceeded with her typing. But she missed little of the talk going on behind her.

"The ridiculous thing about it all," Miss Sears was saying, "is that they have made no effort to connect Mr Belter's death with your experience. Pinning it on young Frenda was pure evasion. The bigger problem was too formidable; it was easier to lock the boy up and make a fuss about his reticence."

"I wonder," Hugh answered casually. "The fact that we've been harassed for months by this gang ought to suggest a possible connection, I suppose; but at the same time, it is just possible that the detectives know what they're about. Considering the underlying national hatred, we might say that the Archduke Francis Ferdinand was murdered as the result of an international conspiracy. As a matter of fact he was the victim of a young man who acted independently and hadn't the slightest conception of the forces he was loosening. . . . In other words, we must be willing to consider that the simplest solution of the crime is the correct solution.

Janet struck a "k" instead of an "l" and applied the eraser with a ferocity that might have told Hugh how his reasoning had affected her had he been watching. Since their conversation the day before, he was like another man to her, selfish, ruthless, as different from the Hugh she had known at first as though he were quite another person. She struck her "l" sharply and went on with her letter.

"You can't ignore Mr. Belter's actions the evening he was killed," Miss Sears insisted. "I am not a particularly close observer, but I saw that he was restless, nervous—even afraid of something. I had never seen him behave so before, and I was a little curious. . . . Then those telephone calls. I wonder if the police have made any attempt to check back on them?"

"I'm sure I don't know," Hugh told her. "Did he make them from this end, or were they coming in from outside?"

"That I don't know," said Miss Sears. "He came in just before I left and said he was expecting a toll call and would take it in Mr. Tolbert's office. I told him I would leave the door open and he could lock it before he left. He must have plugged the board in himself, for almost immediately after he'd been in to speak to me, he came back through, went into Mr. Tolbert's office and closed the door. I heard his voice after that, but I couldn't understand anything he said. As a matter of fact, I didn't try. It was none of my business."

"Of course not. . . . But getting back to Frenda . . . have you any idea why he and Belter puarreled?"

Miss Sears hesitated. "No," she said then; "unless, of course, it was over Frenda's work. He's never been any too industrious. He's at the age to be girl-crazy, I suppose."

"You don't think," Hugh asked pointedly, "that there could have been anything to the detective's theory that they had puarreded over a —a girl, do you?"

The keys of Janet's machine seemed all to rise at the same instant and lock in a hopeless mass. She tore the page from the typewriter, snatched up her hat and coat and hurried from the room.

Hate, hate, hate! She was all but consumed by hatred of Hugh Temple. How had she ever mistaken him for a gentleman? A back-biter and an insulting brute! That's what he was. Not content with having lied about Dick, he now tried to give currency to a story that he knew was false and injurious to her character.

What had been Miss Sears' answer? She regretted that she hadn't controlled herself and stayed for that.

Angry and hurt to the point of illness, she turned from the field and made her way along the road that led to the main highway, not knowing where she was going, nor caring.

And then across the open fields she saw the roof of the house where Henry Frenda and his mother lived, and instantly her heart was softened. What of that poor mother whose son had been arrested for something of which she was entirely ignorant? Was she living alone, eating her poor heart out with tears?

The decision to go to see Henry's mother came to her as she came out to the highway. Immediately she turned and walked diagonally across the field.

When she was still more than a hundred yards from the house, Janet saw a man leave the back entrance and walk off into the woods beyond. Henry's wealthy lumberman, no doubt. Why had he to go roving off just now? She had forgotten him for the moment, but she had been curious to meet him since Henry's fascinating stories of his generous tips. Not because she was in need of tips, she told herself with a dry laugh, but because the wealthy are always interesting and the generous wealthy so much a rarity as to be almost a spectacle. . . . But perhaps he would come back before she left the house.

Mrs. Frenda gave her a cordial welcome, but at the first mention of Henry she pressed a little handkerchief to her eyes and sobbed helplessly.

"I don't know, I don't know," she moaned. "He was always a good boy until—until lately. He got away from me, Miss—Miss Janet". . .

"Just Janet, please. We've been friends a long time, Mrs. Frenda. Henry's told me so much about you. . . . Would it make you feel better if I told you that I know, know Henry hasn't done anything wrong?"

"But you don't know, my dear. You want to comfort me; but I'm his mother and I don't know."

Janet, having no purpose but to ease the poor woman's sorrow, insisted: "I do know, Mrs. Frenda. I can't tell you any more just now. But it's the truth and—and very soon you'll understand. Henry's as innocent as I am. But he's stubborn, Mrs Frenda —all men are stubborn—and there's something he doesn't want to tell. But he will tell, and you'll have him back . . . soon."

"If I could only feel sure of it," Mrs. Frenda said quietly, dabbing her eyes. "Mr. Creil tells me there's nothing to worry about; but he doesn't know any more about it than I do. . . . But you talk as if—as if you knew something the rest of us don't know, Janet."

Janet, dropping her voice, said "I'm telling you this confidentially, Mrs. Frenda. I do know something the rest of you don't know. Don't forget I'm mixed up in this thing. And very soon the truth will be out and Henry's name will be cleared."

Mrs. Frenda, not entirely convinced, suggested tea, but Janet declined. "I've some letters to get off for Mr. Tolbert before noon," she said, rising. And then: "You spoke of Mr. Creil a few minutes ago. Is he the lumberman Henry told me about?"

"Yes. He went out just before you came. I still give him lunch and dinner, but since they took Henry away, he's been staying in the city nights."

"Oh, I see. Then you have no protection here nights?"

"I don't need any protection, my dear. No one would harm me. I grow very lonely some times, of course; but there's only one thing could relieve that."

Janet wanted to offer to stay with her if she desired it, but she was afraid Mrs. Frenda might misunderstand. At the door, she stood on tiptoe and kissed the worn cheek offered her. "May I come back some time, Mrs. Frenda. I'd love to drop in for a chat, unless you'd rather be alone."

"I'd love to have you, dear," Mrs. Frenda assured her. "You've eased the ache a little, I think."

"And don't forget I've told you the truth. Henry'll be back home before you know it. But be patient and brave. It isn't simply a matter of getting him out of jail; we want to clear his name, don't we"

Strolling back across the field, Janet asked herself what madness had prompted her to lie so feverishly to Henry's mother. Suppose Henry had shot Belter after all? Suppose he never came back to that lonely house, to his broken-hearted mother . . . The thought sent a chill through her body. But, she insisted, he couldn't have done a thing like that. Hugh Temple was an idiot and a cad to suggest it. No one expected the detectives to be more than idiots.

Henry would come back to his mother, and his name would be cleared. She hadn't any idea how it was to be accomplished, but if God was in his heaven the truth would out. That, she told herself, was what she knew that they didn't, that God knew the truth about Belter's death and that He would see justice done.

Janet passed the last hangar before the Administration Building in time to see a small plane slip down the field and gracefully take to the air.

"Pretty, isn't it?" a voice said behind her. She turned and saw Tolbert standing on the office steps, watching the rising plane.

"It is pretty," she told him. "It looks a little like the Postman."

Tolbert, holding the door for her to enter, said casually: "It is the Postman. Dick's taking Helen up for her initial flight in a cockpit."

"Helen?" she asked curiously.

"Yes, Helen. She came home yesterday, you know."

"Oh . . . yes. Of course. I'd forgotten," she stammered, and stepped into the office.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE question as to whether or not it is a breach of faith to discontinue broadcasting a serial drama at its most exciting part is raised by Fred A. Quinn, of the Shipping Board, a reader of this column, in a complaint to the Radio Commission.

"As you are undoubtedly aware, the NBC had been broadcasting through Station WRC a serial drama entitled 'Mystery House' for the greater part of a year, and despite the fact that it was one of the best features presented by them it has been shunted about from pillar to post during most of the time it has been on the air," Mr. Quinn said, addressing the commission. "Last week—June 28—although all of the local papers showed it on the program at 10 o'clock, when listeners tuned in at 10 o'clock the station announced a dance orchestra.

"Then, I am told, at 10:15 p. m., 'Mystery House' was presented. I am further informed that earlier in the evening the postponement had been announced, but at the scheduled time, when listeners would be naturally expecting an announcement if the feature was postponed, not a word was said about such postponement.

"Last night, Station WRC blandly announced that this feature would no longer be presented over WRC, but that listeners could hear it over WJZ. Well, you know without my telling you just what the chances are of getting satisfactory reception from a fading station like WJZ during the summer months, even with a seven tube electric set, such as I have.

"If no such regulation has yet been formulated, may I request that you give consideration to the desirability of one which would require a station beginning the broadcasting of a serial to keep faith with their listeners by continuing to broadcast such serial until its completion. If a broadcasting company has not innate courtesy enough to play fair with its unseen audience should it not be compelled to do so?"

AS was the case in the Byrd arrival, the chains, in our opinion, overplayed the broadcasting of the descent of the Chicago endurance fliers, especially Columbia.

It was unquestionably interesting to hear the first words of the fliers after they landed. The boys were modest and sounded like Illinois farmers they were represented to be. But why did the radio audience have to be inflicted with the vaporings of the rest of the mob?

Possibly there never has been such a murdering of the queen's English in a given length of time. The alderman, who kept butting in to tell listeners he was there representing Hiz-zoner Big Bill, the mayor, was probably the worst offender.

The chains, especially when they get in hot water before Congress or at the Radio Commission like to compare themselves to the newspaper, but if any newspaper mentioned its name or praised itself as frequently in its own columns as announcers in this instance kept repeating the names of the chains, it wouldn't have a reader left.

At times the broadcast seemed more like a cheap advertising contest. The fliers were described as being so wornout that they hardly knew what was going on about them. However, one of them (doubtless well paid for it) was not too tired to plug a half a dozen commodities, saying:

"We couldn't have kept up there if it hadn't been for the ——— make of aeroplane, the ——— brand of motor oil, the entertainment given us by the ——— radio set, &c."

Even the manufacturer who supplied the boys with soda pop was "dragged" to the mike for a few words.

THE chains raise their eyebrows when accused of invading the spot news field, but in the Chicago endurance flight went a step farther than ever before by dropping microphones from an aeroplane down to the fliers in flight (and having a fight among themselves doing it) thus beating the Associated Press to the fliers by about two days.

The announcing of the landing was terrible. One person, overhearing a portion of the broadcast from a neighbor's radio, thought it was a street fight and looked out the window to see who was doing the yelling.

The fact that the fliers, without any of them having had stage experience, immediately plunged into vaudeville, where, according to one of them, they propose to "clean up" by adding to the $25,000 already earned through radio and other advertising ventures, shows how highly commercialized the flight was.

"AMOS 'N' ANDY" may lose a few customers Wednesday at 6 p. m., when the wedding ceremonies of Albert Crockett, of the Crockett Mountaineers, and Josephine Phillips, of Pineville, Ky., in New York, will be broadcast by WMAL.

Jane Interprets the MODE

A yellow and black plaid silk ensemble, with a white blouse and choice of two jackets, with or without sleeves. (Courtesy of Jenny, Paris.)

Paris, July 6.

THERE is a slick new traveling bag for a man or a woman, that you just ought to take a look at if you are going about much. It's like any other kind of a suitcase in which to put this, that or the other thing, roomy inside and compact outside, but it is shaped in such a way that you can push it up against a wall, say the back of the seat in front of you, and rest your feet on it when you haven't a footstool.

Well, I wish I had had one like that when I sat in that airplane all the way from Vienna to Paris—nine hours if you get there. Ennyhow, I bet I hold the championship for being the only American woman who ever got through Germany without a visa—but that's a long story and I'm trying to tell you about the traveling case which makes a footstool, In despair of it making a footstool in your estimation from my description, I've sketched it for you in the offing—I mean in the corner.

• • • •

Did you ever stop to think (that is if you are a mother and have a kiddie or two) that the way a child is dressed is a reflection for better or for worse of the mother's discretion and taste? If you never gave it thought you'd just better send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. 'Cause Dare's been keeping both eyes open on the sands of Deauville for all the nice summer togs for kiddies, and now the fun of making them for your very own youngsters—or maybe somebody alse's—is yours. That stamped envelope brings you an illustrated leaflet about pantie-overalls, beachrobes, hats 'n' things!

• • • •

Jenny's dresses are so irrepressibly youthful! Yet they are not by any manner of means merely for young girls—you just have to see cunning little Mme. Jenny herself in one of her own creations to realize that!

So printed yellow, black and white crepe de chine fashioned the Jenny frock I have illustrated for you today, with its blouse or white crepe marocain delicately embroidered. And then there was a sleeveless jacket, bolero-like in effect, and altogether it was a cute trick and I know you'd like it.

• • • •

If your eyes are brown and your hair is either brown or blonde, or if your eyes are blue and your hair black, dash madly to your writing desk and knock off a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dare for an extra leaflet that you can have this week telling you all about what colors are the most becoming and what colors you should avoid. You'll find it helpful really, this leaflet with basic suggestions, that you can alter slightly to make more individual to you. If you don't answer to the above description, watch for the announcement about the leaflet of color suggestions for your type which will be ready shortly.

• • • •

Fall Coat Trends.

Large fur incrustations on body of coat, with large collars; the line of the coat simple, but intricately conceived; cape and bolero effects; a snug waistline which lends a slenderizing effect to the hips; not much fullness down from the knees.

The furs most generally favored are black astrakhan, gray and brown, and galyak. There are no fox collars.

Of course, you're looking for the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Washington Post each Sunday.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

BEARDED IRIS.

ALL the bearded iris enjoy a sunny, well-drained situation. When you are preparing the ground for this particular kind of iris be sure to dig it very deep. It must be at least 18 inches and as much deeper as you are willing to make it. Never use any but well-decayed manure near iris rhisomes, as fresh manure is apt to kill the feeding roots. If you can not get this fertilizer, use bonemeal. Air slacked lime must also be used in soil where iris are to be planted.

Now that their flowering season is coming to an end you will not have to be so particular about watering these plants. After the 25th of this month it is well to cease giving them any water and permit them to rest and ripen, by sun baking, for next season's bloom. During this period of their existence the rain will provide sufficient moisture for their needs.

Bearded iris should be given some finely ground bonemeal in the early spring, but they will live without even this slight attention. It is remarkable how much neglect they will endure. The only thing really fatal to them is planting in a wet place.

Unlike the bearded members of the iris family, the beardless kinds do not like lime, preferring bonemeal or well-rotted manure. They also do well in a soil made up largely of leafmold. These apogons, or beardless varieties, require a great deal of moisture, and unless you plant them near a pond or along a stream you will have to water them continually if you want flowers.

Generally speaking, immediately after they have finished blooming is the time to divide old plants or to plant new ones. Remember, when moving the bearded kinds, that they demand a well-drained location, where the rhizomes can bake thoroughly after the blooming season. When planting, the rhizomes should be only just covered with earth. Though these plants as a rule prefer to be left undisturbed, they increase so rapidly that if you wish to use your increase for new beds you need not hesitate to separate them. The ideal time to do this is just when their period of flowering is over.

Any time from then until the last of August will do. Do not at this time permit grass to grow too close to the roots of your iris—if it does, you may have few if any blooms next summer.

Do not cut the foliage of your iris until after it has turned brown in the autumn; a great many readers asked me about this phase of iris culture last season. If you neglect to remove the foliage then, however, some of the roots will start to decay. Thus an excellent place for slugs will be provided.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CANCER."

IF July 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m.; 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m., and 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon, and 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

A trying time is predicted for this date, and there will be a tendency to be dissatisfied with everything and to view everybody with suspicion. It will be difficult to make satisfactory business terms. A few more hours will bring you under more auspicious influences—hold on!

The child born on this July 7 will ever make you lose your zest, but its development should be retarded and not pushed, for the sake of its mental and physical strength. It will be high strung, sensitive and temperamental. It will be proud and ambitious to a marked degree.

You are a keen liver; nothing will ever make you lose your zest for life, and the simple things will never cease to attract you. Your sense of gratitude will never be dulled. You appreciate every little courtesy, every little gift, and kindness bestowed upon you. You feel yourself a most humble person, and it surprises you when the lamps of fortune shine in your direction. It is a pleasure to do things for one of your type, for you never take undue advantage of your privileges. You are too afraid of making yourself a nuisance; you do not let others ease your life as much as they desire. You are too independent in this respect for your own good. You do not let others do unto you as you are anxious to do unto them.

There is a great deal of love in your nature, and very little hate or resentment. "Hate blinds people. Love can read the writing on the remotest star." You are happier than the average individual because you are seldom at war with yourself, other people or conditions. You take your sorrows and disappointments philosophically. You are spiritually big, although you may have just an ordinary, rather plodding mentality. It is your splendid attitude toward everything, including your work, that makes life worth while to you.

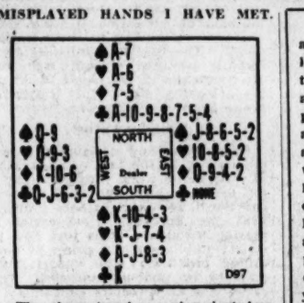
WORK ON BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



The above hand was played at Auction Bridge. South bid one No Trump (not classing his King of Clubs as "a worthless singleton"), West passed, North bid three Clubs (a strength take-out), East passed, and South bid three No Trumps. Strangely enough, the bidding would have been exactly the same in Contract; three-of-a-suit (major or minor) in that game, when bid over partner's No Trump, is now treated by most players as a command to partner to bid for game either in No Trumps or in the suit.

In view of North's Club bid, West was placed in an awkward situation when called upon to make the initial lead; he decided in favor of a small Club through North's strength. South won with the King and Declarer put North in with the Ace of Hearts and then tried the Heart finesse. When West won he considered a third Heart lead to be his safest play; and Declarer, after winning with South's Heart King, decided to "run" and take home his sure tricks—two high Spades, one high Diamond and one high Club, making a total of one trick in Diamonds and two in each of the other suits.

Summer bridgers, get this valuable free new, twelve-page booklet, "Correct Bridge Play," a vacation time Guide Book of Auction and Contract laws clearly explained in nontechnical language and illumined with graphic examples by Milton C. Work, the world's preeminent authority on Bridge and chairman of the rules committee of the American Bridge League. This booklet will decide all the moot points and many important conventions so frequently discussed at Bridge parties. It is yours with the compliments of The Washington Post upon request accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed, return envelope. Address Milton C. Work in care of The Washington Post.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

When playing to the first trick, Declarer should have noted that the only sure way of taking nine tricks was to establish dummy's Clubs; and that this could be done without difficulty, provided he was willing to permit the adversaries to win two Club tricks. As he needed two entries in dummy, he should have sacrificed South's King by playing North's Ace of Clubs on the first trick and then forced West's Jack by leading North's Ten of Clubs. One of dummy's Aces would enable that hand to get in and force West's Club Queen, and the second Ace would enable dummy to run the Club suit after its establishment. Playing the hand in this way, Declarer must take at least ten tricks.

STEEL MEN DISCOUNT PESSIMISTIC FEELING; ENLARGE OUTPUT

Industry Being Expanded Despite Lowered Prices

Increased Capacity Rating Seen as Obscuring Fact That Output Compares Well With Last Five Years—Wages Unimpaired—Methods Improved.

By IRVING FISHER,
Professor of Economics, Yale University.
Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., July 6.—Despite lowered prices for its products, the steel industry is expanding and looks hopefully to the future. George M. Verity, chairman of the board of the American Rolling Mill Co., sounded this note in his recent statement that steel companies generally "will recover what they have lost in profits this year," and added: "Just as there was overoptimism during 1929, there is overpessimism now."

Mr. Verity predicts great improvement in this basic industry during the last quarter of 1930, and "really constructive business" by the first of the new year. Research has brought out new uses for steel. The industry has called in specialists in metallurgy, in advertising and in marketing. With its immense progress in productive technique have come great economies, improved quality of steel products and lowered costs of marketing.

In spite of the lower prices for steel products, the program of the steel manufacturers is to increase total plant capacity within a year by 4,000,000 gross tons of ingots. It is a time of busines recession, yet the production of Bessemer and open-hearth steel, 20,352,960 tons during the first five months of this year, is exceeded only slightly by the average production of 20,567,388 tons for the five years from 1925 to 1929 inclusive.

Capacity Higher Than Ever.

That average includes the extraordinary expansion of steel output last year. The lowered figures of percentage capacity worked this year in the steel mills are not a good guide, because capacity is now higher than ever. On the rating of 1927, for example, steel production in June this year would be 85 per cent of capacity; on rated capacity for 1928, it would be 83 per cent. There have been enlargements this year, and extensions and improvements are going on. The United States Steel Corporation is building 21 open-hearth furnaces in the Chicago district and three at McKeesport, Pa.

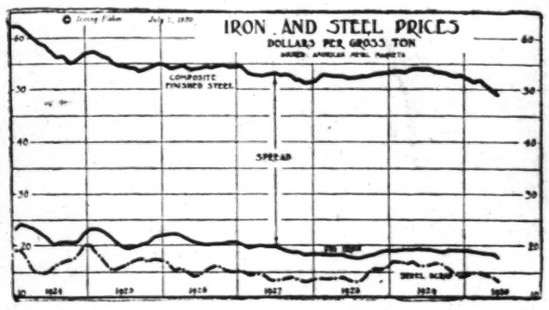
The National Steel Corporation will open a new steel plant near Detroit in August, at the dead center of seasonal slackness. Bethlehem Steel is expanding six open-hearth furnaces at two of its plants. With such extensions the capacity for steel production per year will be greatly increased for 1931. Along with this program of expansion the big steel concerns are adding to their ore reserves. The leading companies have recently acquired several large iron ore companies in the Great Lakes region, looking ahead for supply of needs from 25 to 30 years hence.

Faith in Future.

Such plans and developments are progressing in the face of slackening seasonal activity and with prices moving lower for iron and steel all over the world. News dispatches indicate that the European steel cartel is passing through a crisis just now in its attempt to stabilize prices by curtailing production and apportioning markets in various countries. The cartel has never before confronted a general business depression. The Rhenish and Westphalian producers are busy cutting prices and wage rates. The American steel producers have cut prices, but they have thus far maintained wage rates. They are seeking to find new economies and to apply better methods.

The example is encouraging. With this great basic industry thus manifesting its faith in the business future, all business leaders may well take heart.

(Copyright, 1930.)



The cost of manufacturing plus the profit in the steel industry as indicated by the spread between the cost of raw materials and the amount received for finished steel goods shows a decrease since 1924.

NEW YORK STOCKS INCREASE IN PRICE

Preceding Week's Losses Made Up Despite Trading Was Spiritless.

BROKERS' LOANS DROP

By JOHN W. LAIRD
(Irving Fisher Service).

Yet another large cut in the total of brokers' loans, bringing the ratio of loans to market value again below 6 per cent, failed to find reflection in the trend of the New York Stock Exchange last week, which closed a short and apathetic series of sessions in a minor key. Preholiday lightening of commitments indicated that liquidating shorts had no difficulty in covering the leaders.

The week's net movement, however, had the effect of regaining ground lost the week preceding, though by far the greatest part of June's decline remains to be made up. The week's rise amounted to 2.7 per cent among common industrials, closing at 128.2, slightly off from the week's high of 128.9 made on the day preceding. The Thursday close was almost 4 per cent above the June low touched nearly two weeks ago.

Group indexes fell in line with the general market for the most part, auto accessories stocks showing the only decline for the week. Increases of 3 per cent or more were registered in the groups of motors, stores, radio and theaters, tobacco, office equipment, foods, oils and electrical equipment, motors making the best showing with a 5.4 per cent rise.

Below Last November.

Interest concentrated last month on the possibility of industrial stocks being depressed below the November 13 low, as rails were. Few realized that the month's average for industrials was actually below the average for last November. The latter month's spirited rebound was not duplicated last month. Utilities remain 11 per cent above the November average.

The average daily value of tradings in common industrial stocks on the New York Stock Exchange dropped 46 per cent last week, to $68,100,000, the lowest point for any week since the last week of January, 1927, when the average for the week was $67,600,000. The lowest point recorded since then had been in the week ended January 10 this year, at $75,500,000. Last week's tradings were 10 per cent below that level and 67 per cent below this year's high in the week ended May 9. All stocks values traded dropped by 46 per cent last week to record a similar low level.

Public utilities, steels, radios and theaters, electrical equipment, rails, machinery and railroad equipment and oils were off by more than $4,000,000 last week.

Foreign Bourses Steady.

Stock prices in foreign exchanges were less volatile than in New York last week. Prices in Berlin showed the most activity, gaining by 1.23 per cent, compared with the previous week's drop of 2 per cent. Paris prices continued to gain ground, rising by 0.67 per cent, a slight improvement, compared with the preceding week's advance of 6.2 per cent. London stock prices continue to drop, this time by only 0.63 per cent. In two weeks this index has dropped but half an index point, a slight change compared with the 14-point slump in the preceding three weeks.

The index of 225 industrial common stocks shows what a substantially representative $100 worth of stocks in 1926 would now amount to if held unchanged since that year. This index is weighted by shares outstanding. The index of "50 most active," or market leaders, shows the result of reinvesting the $100 every week in the market favorites of that week. This index is weighted by shares traded, the list changing weekly. The last column of the table gives the average yield per cent on these weeks' 50 leaders at current prices.

Speculative Stocks Active in Gains.

Speculative stocks led in the reaction to the drop in stock prices to show a gain of 3.7 per cent last week, closing the week 4.3 per cent above the recent low of 92.4 on June 24. Investment stocks up 2.9 per cent over the preceding week's close at 165.1 on July 3 were 4.1 per cent above the recent low of 158.6 on June 24. Semiinvestment stocks, always less responsive at the turn, closed last week at 103.2 up 2.4 per cent from the preceding week's close and 3.4 per cent from the low of 99.8 on June 25.

Below are shown index numbers of prices of common industrials on the New York Stock Exchange, arranged in classes derived from Moody's ratings.

NOTE RECOVERY ABROAD

Bond prices on the New York Stock Exchange presented a more favorable outlook last week, with the all-bond index rising toward the week's close to counteract the losses at the week's opening, thereby showing no loss over the week. Five of the six groups made slight gains. The recent decline that began on June 11 continued to July 1, when the index of 100.5 showed a drop of 0.59 per cent from the index of 101.1 on June 10. Bond prices suffered a similar decline from March 21, the 1930 high, of 101.6 to April 30, taking a drop of 0.89 per cent. The average weekly rate of decline in the recent break was 0.20 per cent per week for a period of three weeks, as

NATS' RALLY IN 10TH BEATS YANKS, 3-2; MACKS WIN

U.S. Net Stars In Doubles Finals

Lott-Doeg to Battle Allison-Van Ryn at Wimbledon

Match Seen as Trial for U. S. Davis Cup Places.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 6 (A.P.).—Like Congress in extra session, Wimbledon's tennis fans will reassemble tomorrow for one match—the all-American struggle for men's doubles honors, final event of the British championships.

This battle will pit Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, Wimbledon champions in 1929 and American Davis Cup doubles team in the challenge round against France last year, against the United States champions, George Lott and Johnny Doeg.

Originally, Wimledon's championships were to have closed yesterday, but Allison upset the arrangement by reaching the final round of singles, where he was beaten in straight sets by Bill Tilden. The doubles were postponed until Monday to avoid the necessity of Allison playing two hard final-round matches in one day.

Size of Gallery of Interest.

Considerable interest is being shown concerning how large a gallery will make the trip into the London suburbs to see foreigners fight for another English title. Of the four championships so far decided the United States has won three outright and shared in the other. Not one native Englishman reached the finals round, much less won a title. Helen Wills Moody won the women's singles crown for the fourth consecutive time by beating Elizabeth Ryan, of California. Mrs. Moody and Miss Ryan won the women's doubles by beating Sarah Palfrey, of Boston, and Edith Cross, of San Francisco; Tilden beat Allison for the men's singles title, and Miss Ryan and Jack Crawford, of Australia, defeated Daniel Prenn and Fraulein H. Krahwinkel for mixed doubles honors. Now the United States is assured of another triumph in men's doubles.

The result of tomorrow's match is expected to have a material bearing on America's lineup against France in the Davis Cup challenge round, granted that the Americans win the interzone final against either Japan or Italy.

Tilden's Wimbledon triumph seems to assure him of an invitation to join the American team and in approaching Davis Cup play the tall Philadelphian would have an opportunity to defeat his old rival, Henri Cochet, and round out his brilliant 1930 campaign with a conquest of the man who has been his nemesis in recent years. Tilden's victory here lacked completeness only because Allison had beaten Cochet before Tilden got to the Frenchman.

Tilden May Seek Revenge.

The American ace has taken enough beatings from Cochet's racquet to want revenge. The consensus was that Tilden would have beaten Cochet almost as decisively as he trounced Allison had they met in the Wimbledon finals yesterday. The big American is playing as great, or even finer, tennis than at any time during his career, in the opinion of many experts. Tilden, in Davis Cup play, would be in a position to mark off reverses he has suffered from the little Frenchman. In 1927 against Cochet at Wimbledon, he led by two sets to none and five games to love, only to lose out. The following year he was unsuccessful against Rene Lacoste and last year Cochet beat him fairly easy.

Tilden to Be Asked to Join U. S. Team, Is Indicated

Philadelphia, July 6 (A.P.).—Joseph W. Wear, chairman of the United States Davis Cup commitee, today discussed by telephone with Fitz-Eugene Dixon, nonplaying captain of the American Davis Cup Team, in London, the possibility of inviting Bill Tilden to become a member of the squad.

Mr. Wear said he had a "very satisfactory" conversation with Mr. Dixon, but declined to state whether it had been decided to try to persuade Tilden to join the team. He stated that nothing would be given out concerning the matter until Monday, when the make-up of the United States team will be announced.

Charest Wins In Tourney Feature

Defending Champion Victor Over Farrin in Hard Battle.

Favorites Advance in District Championship Play.

By JACK ESPEY.

CLARENCE CHAREST, the one-armed veteran with the heart of a lion, yesterday continued to silence those who have predicted he wouldn't ret in his District tennis singles championship. For the fourth time in three days he won a three-set match, this time subduing the clever young naval ensign, Jimmy Farrin, by scores of 6—1, 3—6, 8—6, in the titular tournament in progress at Edgemoor Club.

This placed Chares tin the quarter finals poposed to Dooly Mitchell, Georgetown University star, who advanced at the expense of J. L. Moorhead, who had provided a couple of earlier upsets. Mitchell's scores were 6—1, 6—4. The quarter finals are carded today.

They said before the tournament started that Charest wasn't in condition to meet the challenge of other local stars. He hadn't been able previously to get as much practice as he needed.

But judging from results to date, the 46-year-old champion has a heart and a brain that will lead his body through physical tests apparently too great for him.

Farrin Extends Charest.

Ensign Farrin extended Charest to the limit, in fact, forcing him to hit the ball with greater vigor and with more technique than he had shown in his earlier encounters. Charest met the demand with deep drives to the corners and passed his youthful foe at crucial stages.

In the third set Farrin took a lead of 2—0 in games, but only found the title holder putting forth more effort. Charest then tied the set and went on to triumph.

Besides Charest and Mitchell, other favorites to survive the fourth round are Bob Considine, seeded first; Tom Mangan, third, and Billy Jacobs, Baltimore's Middle Atlantic junior champion, who was ranked fifth.

Considine, whom many picked to take Charest's title, that is, prior to the veteran's sudden rise to form, gained an easy victory over Hyman Ritzenberg, yielding but one game in two sets. Mangan, whose blistered foot seemed not to hamper him, overcame John Ladd, 6—1, 6—1, while Jacobs downed the District junior champion, Frank Shore, 6—3, 6—2. It was the second time within two weeks that Jacobs defeated the local boy, as he captured the Middle Atlantic crown in the final battle with Shore at Richmond.

O'Neill Among Survivors.

Maurice O'Neill, coholder of the District public parks doubles championship: Eddie Yeomans, University of North Carolina star, and Colin Stam, veteran local tournament player, are the other quarter finalists, all

BOBBY JONES SHOOTS 72 IN TRIAL

His Par Round Best of Practice Scores at Interlachen.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 6 (A.P.).—Bobby Jones and his putter, "Calamity Jane II," made their debut at Interlachen today, where, starting Thursday, he will defend his national open golf championship and both functioned smoothly to bag a par 72.

Jones set the pace for the pack of title contenders already here during the morning and early afternoon practice rounds with his methodical play, despite the fact that many times he shot without any knowledge of the location of greens save that given orally by his playing partners.

Cyril Tolley, former British amateur champion, Jimmy Johnston, United States amateur title holder, and Don Moe, youthful Portland, Oreg., amateur, showed flashes of outstanding skill in their round with Jones, but lacked his consistent attack. Tolley was credited with a 75, while Johnston and Moe were each given 76, but none played with low scores as his uppermost aim during the introductory round for the championship.

Jones Deliberately Shoots in Rough.

Jones played without an apparent care for his card, and three times he shot deliberately into the rough to test it. He had no trouble getting out and back into safe ground. On the twelfth, par five, 530 yards, he sent his tee shot spinning into the rough with deliberation, from there he looped it into a trap near the green, flipped his third easily to within a few feet of the pin, and holed out for a birdie four.

Only club members and their families besides contestants were permitted on the course during the Sabbath practice, but a gallery of more than 200 persons, most of those present, followed Jones around. His putter now in its sixth year of service, brought outstanding results for the champion, in contrast to many of the other entries who have been free to express their lack of respect for the greens and their own luckless putting. So far, many more challenges for low scores have been blasted at the greens than anywhere along the line of play.

Giants Twice Defeat Phils; Klein Hits 23d

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Between showers the Giants took a double-header from the Phillies, 10 to 8 and 6 to 2. Pete Donohue, who hurled the second game, settled down after a poor start and held the Phillies in check, while the Giants hit Willoughby at opportune moments. Lindstrom and Leach both hit homers, the latter coming with a man on base.

The Phillies gave the Giants quite a scare in the ninth inning of the first game, rallying for five runs. Mitchell had struggled along till two were out in the ninth with a commanding lead but weakened, and Chaplin retired the last Phillie batter. Chuck Klein found Mitchell for his twenty-third homer with two aboard before he retired.

ROBINS BACK ON TOP OF LEAGUE

Boone, in His Debut, Leads as Braves Bow, 10-4.

BROOKLYN, July 6 (A.P.).—Ike Boone, redoubtable Coast League slugger, made his debut with the Brooklyn Robins against the Boston Braves today and starred as the Robins pounded out a 10-to-4 victory to regain the league lead.

Boone hit a single and a home run and turned in the fielding gem of the game in the first inning as he caught Walter Berger's bid for a home run and held on to the ball as he fell head first into the left field bleachers.

Brooklyn got eighteen hits to beat Harry Seibold. Jim Elliott pitched a steady game to hold the Braves to eight blows.

The second game of the scheduled double-header was called in the Brooklyn half of the third inning as Boston led, 1 to 0. Babe Phelps and Tom Zachary were the opposing pitchers. A sudden shower drenched the field.

Reds Win From Cubs Twice, 5-4 and 8-7

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 6 (A.P.).—The Cubs fell back into second place in the National League race today by dropping both games of a double header to the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 4 and 8 to 7. The Brooklyn Dodgers, by virtue of a triumph over Boston, eased back into the lead by the margin of a few percentage points, since they have played fewer games than the Cubs.

The Reds won the first game by a three-run rally in the ninth inning and took the second by virtue of the breaks. Kelly, for the Reds, and Hartnett, for the Cubs, each hit a homer with one on in the second game.

Sixth World Record Set In A. A. U. Swimming

Long Beach, Calif, July 6 (AP.).—The sixth world record of the national A. A. U. swimming meet, here was broken today when Clarence Crabbe, of the Los Angeles Athletic Club defeated Maiola Kalili, Hawaiian, to win the half-mile free style in 10m. 20.4s. The former record, 10m. 22.2s. was set by Johnny Weismuller in 1927 at Honolulu.

In the women's 220-yard breast stroke, Margaret Hoffman, of the Scranton (Pa.) Swimimng Association, scored an upset by defeating the title holder, Agnes Geraghty, New York Women's Swimming Association, in 3m. 20s. Eleanor Holm, of the New York Women's Association, was third.

Slim Margin Held by A's In Race

Earnshaw Scores 11th Victory, Beating Red Sox, 4-3.

Rally in 9th Decides; Webb and Dykes Hit Homers.

BOSTON, Mass., July 6 (A.P.).—The Athletics made it three out of four in the current series by defeating the Red Sox, 4 to 3, here today at Braves Field.

What proved to be the winning run was scored in the ninth inning on the combination of Cochrane's walk, Simmons' single and a force play at second. Webb, for the Red Sox, and Dykes, for Philadelphia, each hit home runs.

Earnshaw went the distance and hung up his eleventh victory of the season.

The champions were unable to gain any ground, however, as the determined Nationals stuck doggedly on their heels by trouncing the Yankees to sweep the four-game series. The Mackmen's lead remained at slightly less than one point in the percentage column.

Cards Beat Pirates Twice; Douthit Stars

St. Louis, July 6 (A.P.).—The Cardinals defeated Pittsburgh in both ends of a double-header today, although they made only two hits in one of the games. The scores were 2 to 1 and 12 to 4.

Spencer and Haines staged an old-fashioned hurling duel in the opener, a wild pitch by Spencer contributing to the Cardinal victory. The wild throw gave the Cardinals their first run after Wilson had doubled and gone to third on an infield out. With the count tied at 1-all, Douthit, the first Cardinal up in the ninth, hit a home run.

Heavy hitting by the Cardinals made the night cap a one-sided affair, W. Waner, of the Pirates, got five hits out of five trips to the plate in the second game, including a double and a triple.

Today's two victories made it five straight for the Cardinals, who have won nine out of their ten last games.

GALLANT FOX TO MEET STAR FIELD IN $80,000 RACE

Salmon Star, Snowflake, Is Threat

Gallant Knight Tries Again at Arlington on Saturday.

Caruso, Flying Heels and Others Likely to Compete.

ARLINGTON PARK, Chicago, Ill., July 6.—Whatever other 3-year-olds sidestep the second Arlington Classic, which will gross about $80,000 at Arlington Park next Saturday and be the most richly dowered of this season's 3-year-old's specials of world racing as the first Classic which Blue Larkspur won and cinched his claim to the 3-year-old's championship of 1929 by licking Clyde Van Dusen, Dr. Freeland, Grey Coat and Windy City topped all last season, the all-conquering Gallant Fox, that brilliant son of Sir Galahad III, and Marguerite will have at least one filly to beat.

Walter J. Salmon has never been known to miss a big race with a horse of any class and he and his trainer, Pat Dwyer, are confident they have a top hole performer in Snowflake. A lot of others are of the same mind. If Gallant Fox has won a Wood, a Preakness, a Kentucky Derby, a Belmont and a Dwyer, Snowflake has won a Ladies' Handicap, a Coaching Club American Oaks, an Illinois Oaks and a couple of overnight races.

Gallant Fox and Crack Brigade licked her in most unchivalrous fashion in the Preakness renewal, but she is better now than she was then. One mile and a quarter, moreover, is her favorite distance. Her daddy, Mad Hatter, son of Fair Play and Madcap, was Exterminator's greatest distance running rival for several seasons. He, himself won a couple of Jockey Club Gold Cup's gallops of 2 miles.

Mother From English Stock.

Snowdrop, her mother, a daughter of Cicero and Snowcapt, she by Roe Herode from Snowflight and she by Cyllene from St. Donatts, has the stoutest of English pedigrees. A smooth-gaited distance running huzzy is this Snowflake. Like her daddy and the run of his get the longer she races, the better she likes it.

And there will be plenty of other competition. The winner's share of the purse can hardly fall lower than $65,000. With ten running it will be $70,000. Either is a lot of money. Once in a while even such a horse as Gallant Fox comes a cropper; sustains unexpectedly a beating. Gray Lag nosed out Blue Larkspur in last year's Dwyer, after Larkspur had won revivals of the Withers and Belmont Stakes. Upset licked Man o' War in a renewal of the Samford Stakes at Saratoga in the summer of 1919. And there will be $8,000 for the second horse in the Classic, $4,000 for the third and $2,000 for the fourth. Many a good horse betrays championship form in a race that doesn't pay $2,000 to its winner.

Gallant Knight to Try Again.

Gallant Knight, which has been winning such derbies and other big 3-year-old races as Gallant Fox, Reveille Boy and Dixie Lad have overlooked, has come up from Kentucky for another go at the "big horse."

INSERT B s.gberEocim

Gallant Knight finished second to him in the fifty-sixth Kentucky Derby. Ned O, which brought up third in the Louisville race, will try his luck again. Buck Forman says that the talk of his resting Ned O for fall racing is unfounded. He contends that the son of Campfire and La Flambee was never better, and warns that he is apt to lick Gallant Fox. He doesn't care what kind of going Supt. Billy Meyers offers either.

And there will be Crack Brigade, which had Gallant Fox driving in the Preakness; Caruso, Flying Heels, Xenofol, Sydney Grant, Plucky Play Swinfield, Hornpipe, Uncle Luther, Gone Away and Spinach. Spinach, which was licking old horses at one mile about New York in the autumn, recently revealed winning form at Aqueduct. William J. Spiers, who is training this son of Sir Martin for William Zeigler, says he wouldn't miss the Classic for a farm. Gone Away, which split Wichone and Boojum at the finish of the Champaign renewal at Belmont Park last September, is better than Spinach.

Caruso Beat "Fox" Last Year.

Caruso, ace of the stable of William R. Coe, of New York, licked Gallant Fox in last August's renewal of the United States Hotel Stakes, and Flying Heels, a little fellow, bred on the distaff side like Durbar 2d, British Derby winner of 1914; Clyde Van Dusen, Genie, Fairy Wand, &c., won last year's renewals of the TiaJuana and Pimlico Futurities and the Remsen and Nursery Handicaps. If he didn't beat Gallant Fox in the Nursery, a dash of six furlongs at Belmont Park he did lick Hi Jack, and Hi Jack separated Whichone from Gallant Fox at the finish of the great Futurity, which grossed more than $130,000.

Plucky Play, a son of My Play and Courage, which looked promising in Maryland last fall, has recently showed a return to his best form at Arlington and Sydney Grant has, too. Not improbably there will be more than a dozen starters in the second Classic.

SIXTEEN innings to some of the best sandlot baseball seen in this section in years were played at Riverdale yesterday before the Dixie Pigs, of Bladensburg, triumphed over the Hyattsville All-Stars, 7 to 6, giving the victors undisputed possession of second place in the Prince Georges County Section of the Capital City League.

Faced with the prospect of being eliminated from further contention for the county championship, the teams battled run for run for nine innings and then rival pitchers took entire command of things until the sixteenth.

Mt. Rainier Holds Lead by Win.

Although triumphant, the Dixies failed to gain on the leading Mount Rainier Nine, which shut out the Brentwood Hawks, 7 to 0. Berwyn A. C. failed to muster full forces and forfeited to Bowie, 9 to 0.

Hyattsville tied the score at 6-all in the ninth and then both Babe Clapper, of the Dixies, and Marcus Chaconas, of the All-Stars, settled down to their respective tasks with determination.

Clapper started on the hill for the Pige, but gave way to Adair in the fifth. Lefty Stevens worked part of the ninth for the winners and Clapper was called back to the mound in the tenth. Frushour, who started for Hyattsville, gave way to Tom Mudd in the ninth after the Dixies had taken a two-run lead. After Hyattsville knotted the count, Chaconas was called to the mound, and for six innings he pitched scoreless ball.

Hurley and Ensor Hit Freely.

As the result of the overtime victory, the Dixie Pigs are in second place, a half game behind the leaders, with Hyattsville a game further to the rear.

Waple held the Brentwood Nine to four scattered hits and was never in serious trouble. Hurley and Ensor were effective at times for the Hawks. Colley's hitting and base running featured for the Mounts.

WESTS CLOSE TO MIDGET TITLE

Senators Triumph in Tenth, 4-2; Lionels Are Beaten.

BY trimming the Hurehman Store Nine of Alexandria yesterday, 14 to 1, while the Senators were defeating Georgetown, 4 to 2, in ten innings and the King's Palace Nine was turning back the Lionels, the Sam West Midgets virtually clinched the Capital City League championship. With three games to go, the Westmen ran their lead to three games.

Ten innings were required for the Senator and Georgetown Nines to reach a decision. Talburtt, of the Senators, and Nau, of Georgetown, staged a pretty hurling duel with neither holding a decided edge. Nau faltered in the tenth when the Senators put over their deciding tallies. Mintzell led the stickmen.

Buscher Makes Mound Debut.

Emmett Buscher made his debut with the King's Palace Nine, pitching steadily while his mates hammered out a 13-to-3 decision. B. Robertson starred for the victors.

King's steady pitching and the hitting of Nau and B. Oliver featured the Sam Wests' triumph.

Bethesda Nine Is Beaten In Tenth By Takoma, 4-1

Rockville and Chevy Chase Teams Also Win in Montgomery County Race; Standings Unchanged.

STOPPED "cold" for nine innings yesterday, the Takoma Tigers put on a three-run rally in the tenth inning to defeat the Bethesda Firemen, 4 to 1, and thereby retain the lead in the Montgomery County Section of the Capital City League.

A Tiger victory was essential to the title aspirations of the team, as the Rockville and Chevy Chase Gray Nines were turning back the Colonial and Kensington Teams, respectively. The Rockville sluggers piled up a 17-to-5 score, but the Grays had to show their best to beat Kensington at Wheaton, 9 to 7.

Frisbie Almost Repeats.

Davidson, the Tiger southpaw, and Frisbie, who previously gained a decision over the Takoma Tigers, engaged in a great mound duel at Bethesda. From the third to the tenth frames, the Tigers were helpless before Frisbie's slants. Only in the sixth were the Firemen able to score on Davidson. Earl Baker led the winning attack.

The Grays and Kensington Firemen started out as though intent on having an old-fashioned slugging bee, but Knight and Stubbs tightened after the fifth. Numerous extra base hits, including home runs by Stupp, W. Coleman and Skinner, featured the game at Rockville.

BALLSTON A. C. kept close upon the heels of the leading Bauserman Motor Co. Nine in the Virginia Section race of the Capital City League by trouncing the Woodlawns, 16 to 4, yesterday at Ballston. The Bauserman Nine profited by a forfeit decision over the Cherries.

With Harrison pitching air-tight baseball in the early rounds, the Ballston batsmen unleashed a vicious assault upon the offerings of Mallonsky and piled up a lead sufficient for Harrison to take things easy in the closing rounds.

Hilleary's home run was the bright spot in the Woodlawn attack. Kidwell and Miller led the heavy hitting attack of the winners.

Jefferson District Firemen remained in third place, being idle yesterday.

July 7, 1905.

Maj. Richard Sylvester, chief of police, announced that the Fourth of July of 1905 was one of the most quiet and freest from serious crimes and accidents he had known.

All records for lengthy ball games in Boston were broken when the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Red Sox, 4 to 2, after twenty innings. The previous record was set in 1878 when Boston played Providence in a game of eighteen innings.

After being put through her paces by Pilot James Raleigh, and officially recommended by Fire Chief Belt and Thomas M. Robinson, machinist, the new fire boat was conditionally accepted by the Commissioners.

The twenty-second International Christian Endeavor convention is being held in Baltimore.

Joseph F. Carroll, 35 years old, of 1116 Fifth street northwest, and John J. Donohue, a sailor on the U. S. S. Dolphin, were saved from being drowned in the Potomac by Edward Whyte, a boathouse keeper at the foot of O street southwest.

The second annual convention of the Maryland Rural Letter Carriers' Association is being held at Hagerstown. Many delegates from the District are attending the convention.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

CORRECTING AMERICAN DIET.

AGNES F. MORGAN and M. M Barry found themselves in a state of mind about certain trends in the American diet. The land is one of plenty. There is food enough, and money enough to buy it, but somehow or other a considerable part of the population suffers from some form of food deficiency.

It is true that some do not get enough to eat and are undernourished, but that is another story. Every one knows the whys and the wherefores of that group. Not so with those who pay enough for food and who get enough of it, who nevertheless suffer from lime starvation because they do not get enough of the lime foods; those who eat well but who develop goiters because they do not get enough iron foods, and those who develop rickets, scurvy and pellagra because of dietary errors.

The cause of the mental unrest of these ladies lay in still another field. The American diet is running increasingly to starches and sugars. These are carbohydrate foods and carbohydrates are the cheapest energy producing foods and, in addition, are easily digested. But one can commit dietetic errors even in the use of foods that are basically good. The error they diagnosed lay in the elimination of the germ from the flours, meals and cereals made from grains. Grains from which the germ has been removed are poor in vitamin B.

They put two sets of children on diets. One contained plenty of ordinary breads and cereals. The others were on the same foods except that the germ had been left in the flour or cereal, or was added to it. The children on the wheat germ and flour foods put on weight about three times as fast as did the controls. They outgrew their competitors in height and stature at about the same rate. They had less acidosis.

There was no doubt but that the children fed the wheat germ along with other foods grew faster and generally thrived better. The authors are disposed to think the wheat germ children had better appetites, were less nervous, were better poised, and suffered less from constipation. The improvement was ascribed to the increased vitamin content of the diet because of the addition to it of wheat germ.

COMMODITY PRICE DECLINE IS HALTED

Index Almost Stationary; First Sign Business Is Improving.

NOTICED FIRST ABROAD

The long and severe decline of the wholesale commodity price level, which brought it down to the status of 1916, was finally halted last week, when the index remained almost stationary. As a matter of fact, the level dropped, but only by one-tenth of 1 per cent. Using the Irving Fisher indexes (1926 equals 100), the all commodity price index stood at 85.6. The rate of all of the level has been steadily easing during the past your weeks. The week ended June 13 it fell .7 per cent, June 20, the decline was .9 per cent, June 27 it was .6 per cent, and last week only .1 per cent.

A turning point had been reached the preceding week in Germany and France, and last week's drop here was the smallest since the week ended April 11, when the index made a temporary recovery of 0.6 per cent. Since April 11 the index has been dropping at an average rate of 0.51 per cent each week, with the largest weekly drop registered on June 20.

Ratio Is 42 Per cent.

The ratio of individual rises to the total number of price changes was 42 per cent last week, as compared with 24 per cent the preceding week.

There is, of course, possibility that this halt in the decline will prove to be only temporary, but it at least exhibits the first sign of better business conditions in a long while.

Week ended—	Price Index (1926 Equals 100)	Index of Buying Power of $ (1926 Equals 100 cents)
July 5	85.6	116.8
June 28	85.7	116.7
June 21	86.2	116.0
June 14	87.0	115.0
June 7	87.6	114.2
Year ago	98.1	101.9
May average	88.6	112.8
April average	90.6	110.4
1929 average	96.3	103.9
1928 average	98.2	101.8
1927 average	94.2	106.2
1926 average	100.0	100.0
1925 average	105.2	95.1
1924 average	98.9	101.1
1923 average	101.1	98.9

The improved commodity situation last week found three groups showing gains; they were textiles, up 0.37 per cent; fuel and lighting, up 0.55 per cent, and miscellaneous, up 0.14 per cent. Two groups—farm products and building materials—held their own, while hides and leathers, metal products, foods and chemicals registered falls.

Food and Hide Groups.

In the case of the foods and hides groups, both had shown an earlier trend upward, so that the fall was not in any sense serious.

The strength shown by textiles was especially gratifying since this group has been sadly off of late and had reached rock bottom conditions.

In the main classification we find the semimanufactured division the only really weak sister. Both raw materials and finished goods showed evidences of resistance to lower levels, raw materials having only slight declines for two weeks, and finished goods holding its own for three weeks.

OUTLOOK ON BONDS IS HELD PROMISING

compared with a rate of 0.15 per cent per week for a period of six weeks in the preceding decline.

The average daily value traded in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange dropped by 13.3 per cent last week to $9,900,000, with all of the six groups showing declines and utilities at their 1930 low. Of the 70 bonds in the Irving Fisher selection, 47 per cent rose in price last week, as compared with the preceding week's close, when 22 per cent were off and 31 per cent showed no change.

Second grade rails were the only bonds not to make a sharp recovery toward last week's close. This group, at 102.2 on July 3, has dropped by 3.2 per cent since June 9, by 4.5 per cent since the 1930 high of 106.7 on March 24, and is but 4.5 per cent above the extreme low of 97.5 on November 15, 1929.

Foreign government bonds made the most marked recovery, closing last week up 0.41 per cent.

CRACKSMEN BLAST SAFE; TAKE $2,000 IN DENTIST'S GOLD

Office of Dr. R. J. Rothstein Broken Into; One Strong-Box Overlooked.

LIEUT. KELLY CALLS IT EXPERTS' WORK

Dr. J. P. Wiliams Also Has Visit From Robbers Who Steal Forceps.

Thieves broke into two dentists' offices over the week-end, stealing about $2,000 worth of gold and other precious metals from a safe in one of the offices.

The safe in the office of Dr. Robert J. Rothstein, in the building at 1616 K street, was broken open by a double charge of nitroglycerine, and gold worth approximately $2,000 was stolen. The robbers overlooked a small locked steel box containing several thousand dollars' worth of additional metal.

Lieut. Edward J. Kelly and Detective Thomas Sweeney, who investigated the crime, said that the job seemed to be the work of an expert. No fingerprints or other clews were left.

From the offices of Dr. J. P. Williams, at 2034 Clagett street northeast, thieves took several steel forceps and a gold upper bridge with space for four teeth. The bridge is valued at $60.

Dr. Rothstein said that he would not be able to furnish police with a complete list of the material stolen until this morning.

Woman Suffers Injury On Leaving Ball Game

Miss Ruth Holmes, 27 years old, 910 Webster street northwest, daughter of Police Lieut. W. E. Holmes, of the Third Precinct, suffered a sprained ankle yesterday afternoon when she slipped and fell while leaving Griffith Stadium after the Nats' victory over the Yankees.

Miss Holmes was taken to Garfield Memorial Hospital by Donald A. Hunter, of 2307 Wisconsin avenue northwest, where she was treated by Dr. William McFaul. She was later removed to her home.

Thomas Answers Hyde on Tariff

Production Cut Would Make Rates Effective, Farm Critic Says.

(Associated Press.)

Taking issue with the recent radio address of Secretary Hyde, who estimated a net gain of $102 a year for the farmer under the new tariff act, Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, asserted yesterday the "fallacy in the reasoning of the Secretary is that the rates on agricultural products will be effective."

"In his radio address," Senator Thomas said in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, "Secretary Hyde commended and endorsed the new tariff act as a 'distinct gain' for agriculture as concrete examples of such benefits. He cites the increased duties levied on wool, eggs, long staple cotton and dairy products. No gain of any kind was claimed for the wheat, corn, or cotton farmers."

Senator Thomas contended in order to make the 42-cent tariff on wheat effective the farmers must reduce production approximately 200,000,000 bushels. Corn and cotton also were on an export basis, he said, and therefore could not be aided by a tariff.

Real Pension Fray Near, Says Rankin

Fiery Mississippian Holds Struggle for Higher Rate Only Begun.

Before leaving the city yesterday for the American Legion convention at Greenwod in his home State, Representative Rankin Democrat), Mississippi, who led the fight in the House for the World War veterans' relief measure vetoed by President Hoover, sounded a warning that the struggle has just started.

The fiery Mississippian stampeded the House when Representative Johnson Republican), South Dakota, chairman of the World War veterans committee, called up the original relief measure. Party lines were smashed and the G. O. P. leaders could only stand on the sidelines and watch the rout.

"The real battle for veterans' relief has just begun,' 'said Mr. Rankin. "While the President has committed the country to a permanent pension policy that will be infinitely more expensive in the long run than if he had signed the bill extending the presumptive period to January 1, 1930, the veterans throughout the country are disappointed with the 'pauper' rates which the bill contains. They are wholly inadequate to relieve the suffering of the totally disable veterans."

Von Prittwitz Sees War Hatred Ended

America and Germany Today Good Friends, Envoy Says Over Radio.

The opinion that reconciliation between the American and German people after the World War has become an accomplished fact was expressed yesterday by Ambassador von Prittwitz in a radio address. The former Ambassador's message was broadcast over the Conclave of Nations series of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Prefacing his remarks with a tribute to transatlantic aviators, Herr von Prittwitz said:

"If technical science and technical skill have been able to diminish the physical distance which separates Europe from America, it is perhaps still more gratifying that the forces of good will on both sides of the ocean have been able equally to reduce the mental distance created between our two peoples by the war. "Notwithstanding that an ocean separates us, reconciliation between the American and German peoples after the war rapidly began and today seems an accomplished fact."

QUARTZ WINDOWS IN DEEP SEA BELL

Beebe Uses Clear Stone to Examine Bottom of Atlantic.

STRAIN BREAKS GLASS

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, July 6.—Through the use of clear fuzed quartz as the windows of a deep-sea bell, Dr. William Beebe, scientist and explorer, has been able to descend more than a quarter of a mile in the ocean, a greater depth by far than any human being has ever previously attained. The actual depth reached by Dr. Beebe in his first descent, which took place off Bermuda, was 1,426 feet. With him in the bell was Otis Barton, of New York, representing the American Museum of Natural History, for which the novel undersea venture is being conducted.

The compartment in which the two men went down to the ocean bottom is a cylinder of cast steel equipped with a telephone and electric light cable, a camera, oxygen apparatus and three port holes, or windows, eight inches in diameter. Through two of these windows electric lights shine out, illuminating the ocean-bed and the water. Through the central window the scientists make their visual observations and take photographs. The cylinder is lowered by a steel cable from a mother ship.

The windows consist of disks of clear fused quartz 3 inches thick. These disks are fused in the Thomson research laboratory of the General Electric Co. at West Lynn, Mass., the working force of which is made up of experts on fused quartz under Prof. Elihu Thomson, an authority on this substance. It is in this laboratory that immense disks of quartz are now being fused in preparation for the proposed 200-inch astronomical mirror for the California Institute of Technology.

The use of fused quartz in Beebe's underwater compartment solved the one difficulty on which the entire enterprise hinged. Plate glass, if used for this purpose would not be able to withstand the pressure of approximately 1,200 pounds to the square inch, and a 3-inch slab of glass would render vision through it out of the question for Dr. Beebe's purpose, since it would be clouded with a greenish film. The fused quartz makes vision as clear as looking through an ordinary window on land.

By reaching this extremely great depth, Dr. Beebe becomes the counterpart in deep-sea descents to Lieut. Apollo Soucek, the Navy's altitude ace, in high-altitude ascents. Lieut. Soucek, a few days ago, in a naval seaplane, flew higher than any human being has ever gone before, 38,560 feet. Dr. Beebe has gone under the ocean's surface deeper than any human being has ever done before. The limit of ocean divers is 350 feet.

Insurance Not Enough, Gems to Be Guarded

Baltimore, July 6.—Jewelers can not rely on insurance alone for protection of their property, Gustav H. Niemeyer, vice president of the Jewelers' Security Alliance, told members of the Maryland, Delaware and District of Columbia Jewelers Association here.

The speaker stated that in 1924 there were 1,000 attacks made upon jewelers with a loss of $3,383,000. In the first four months of 1930, according to Mr. Niemeyer, there were 482 robberies, with a loss of $489,000.

"Crime in this country is so well organized," said the speaker, "that the individual hasn't a chance to fight his case in court."

EIGHTH MAN IS HELD IN TICKET SCALPING

Gray Stein Arrested at Game Yesterday; Four Boys Also Nabbed.

TRIALS SET FOR TODAY

A reputed ticket "scalper" and four boys who made a practice of soliciting parking of automobiles were arrested yesterday near the ball park in the official drive against these nuisances.

A man giving his name as Gray Stein, 25 years old, of Baltimore, Md., was charged with "scalping" after being arrested by Private Emlous Barnett. It is said that he had nine tickets in his possession when arrested. He is being held at the Eighth Precinct Station.

The four boys who were charged with soliciting parking privileges will join eighteen otthers arrested Saturday. It is probable that the cases of all 22 will be heard today.

Seven men arrested Saturday on "scalping" charges are expected to be arraigned today, and it is believed that Stein's case will be heard then, too. After the men were arrested it was discovered that they would have to be charged with violation of the police regulations, as the old statute covering this offense had been repealed. The cases will probably go to the United States branch of the Police Court.

Policeman Hurt in Fall While Chasing Youth

Policeman Theodore R. Haage, 26 years old, of the Eighth Percinct, received injuries whose seriousness had not been determined yesterday when he slipped and fell while chasing a colored boy. He is at Garfield Hospital, under care of police surgeons.

The policeman, who was on duty at the ball park, was pursuing a youth who had been soliciting parking for autos when he stepped in a spot of grease. His head struck against the curb. At the hospital he was treated for bruises of the head and left arm, but the diagnosis has not been completed.

NEW PASTOR WINS PRAISE BY SERMON AT MASONIC RITES

"Knowledge of God" Theme of Dr. C. C. Rasmussen Under Treaty Oak.

INTRODUCTORY SERVICE OF PRAYER CONDUCTED

Life Itself Is Tie Binding All of World Together, Minister Asserts.

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

A new minister in Washington, the Rev. Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, pastor of Luther Place Church, was introduced under favorable auspices to the community at large yesterday afternoon at the Masonic services held under Treaty Oak on Temple Heights. All the Masonic Clubs of the District, men and women, were there, and in addition a large number of others, for these services are open to the public.

When Dr. Rasmussen had concluded his address—it was in truth a sermon of quality and rare beauty—the Rev. Dr. John C. Palmer, master of ceremonies, felicitated the City of Washington on having secured a new minister of such strength and promise. "You have already very quickly made your place with your own fine congregation," Dr. Palmer said, "and now you have won our hearts, and I predict and confidently hope that you will just as easily win the great heart of this National Capital."

An introductory service of prayer and praise was held, participated in by the grand chaplain, Col. Dickson, and J. Walter Humphrey, who sang two solos.

Scripture Reading Followed.

One of the splendid old Presbyterian customs is Scripture recitation at the prayer service, and Dr. Palmer tried this on the ground in front of him. Dr. Rasmussen had chosen for his Scripture lesson the Forty-sixth Psalm, and in order to ease up to it and emphasize it in the minds of the auditors, Dr. Palmer led off with the Twenty-third Psalm, which was bravely repeated by many; then came the Ten Commandments, with which some were not so familiar, even when the men were tested against the ladies, and when it came to the Forty-sixth Psalm the barytone voice of the leader almost alone led off, which would indicate that the Masons do not memorize the Bible as well as they do their ritual.

The speaker's theme was the knowledge of God. He selected three words from one of St. Paul's letters to Timothy: "I Know Him."

Life Is Common Interest.

In brief, Dr. Rasmussen expounded these words as follows:

"We are all of us bound together by common interests. It would be most interesting, if we could determine it, what are the interests that bind this gathering today, what will bind you together tomorrow, what through the years. Notwithstanding this tie that binds us, we are all very, very different from each other. No two biographies are alike. But at the basis of life everywhere, in this country, over the seas, in heathen lands, wherever men live and have their being, there is a common interest that binds them together. What is it? Life itself.

"There is an ever-present interest in life with each one of us. Every one of us is seeking to find the answer to three questions. Where did I come from? Why am I here? Whither am I going?

Psalm Answers Questions.

"The forty-sixth psalm, which you repeated a moment ago, is breathed through with the answer to all three questions. The psalmist answers every one of them with his prayer to God. For God is the basis of life. He alone can answer the questions: Where did you come from? Why are you here? And whither are you going?

"You are standing on a good foundation, you have a good basis on which to plant yourself, when you affirm the existence of God, as the psalmist does in the very first sentence in this psalm. But how are you going to discover God? No man has ever seen God. You can't prove God's existence scientifically. Then, how will you discover His presence?

"There are four ways, my friends, of doing this. Let me briefly state them to you.

Ancients Saw Him in Visions.

"1. There are men who have seen God in a vision. You have their testimony. Do you think you could ever get Abraham to say that he had not seen God in a vision and talked with him at Haran? Do you think Moses would doubt the existence of God after his experience on Mount Sinai, where he received the Ten Commandments? No man can make Paul believe that God does not exist after his Damascus experience.

"'I know Him, for I have seen Him face to face,' said Paul.

"2. Because we have seen God in the things He has made—in the heavens, which declare His glory; in the beautiful trees and the lovely flowers; in the marvelous things that we see all about us every day. The very bigness and the very minuteness of the universe manifest God.

3. We have the testimony of godly men and women whom we have known from childhood and who have been known to each generation throughout the ages. The best lives of all time have testified that they have found God and have told us what He meant to them.

Old and New Prophets Agree.

The prophets of old and the prophets of modern times—Abraham and Moses and Elijah and Paul and Augustine and Luther and Zwingli and John Knox and Wesley and a host of others—their unassailable testimony to the existence of God is told in their lives and in their works.

"4. While we can not prove the existence of God scientifically—God is beyond such proof—we can and do prove him by the outreach of faith. Let us try the pragmatic test. Put your faith through that test. Live by God's Word; live by the rules He has laid down for the guidance of His people; and see if you do not find Him. It has never failed yet; it never will fail."

At the conclusion of this discourse the Rev. Godfrey Chobot, minister of the Sixth Presbyterian Church, pronounced the apostlic benediction.

Armored Machine And Pair Are Held

Police Claim They Nabbed Smoke-Screen Outfit With Arrest.

An automobile armored with half-inch metal sheeting, concealed neatly, and a detached smoke screen apparatus were seized with the arrest of two Negro men early yesterday morning as the pair were said to have driven the car into an open garage in the rear of a P street residence near First street northeast.

The two, both held at the Second Precinct station for investigation, gave their names as Warren Woodland, 24 years old, of Georgia avenue near Florida avenue northwest, and William Stewart, 28 years old, of Ninth street near O street northwest.

They were taken in custory by Policemen A. H. Cochran and C. H. Gould, who reported they saw the smoke screen equipment on the floor of the open garage and lay in wait until the machine with the two men stopped there.

766 Dangerous Autos Scrapped

Automotive Group Report Cites Risks by Drivers of Faulty Cars.

During May and June 766 automobiles, or about 11 per cent of the total traded in here, were condemned as dangerous by 47 Washington dealers and sent to the junk pile, according to tabulations of the Washington Automotive Trade Association.

Before being scrapped these defective automobiles were smashed with sledge hammers to prevent the possibility that they might be put back into operation.

"When 766 cars in two months are found so dangerous that the dealers will not run the risk of trying to repair them, it is obvious that the menace of fauly automobiles in Washington is serious enough to merit the earnest attention of the public, especially when it is realized that the vast majority of such unsafe vehicles still are being driven on the streets," the association statement said.

FREEMAN PRAISES NAVY PACT IN TALK RADIOED AT LONDON

Event Is First Time Voice of American Bishop Has Come From England.

TREATY SEEN AS MEANS TO GAIN WORLD PEACE

Is Expected to Return to United States in Four Weeks.

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

The radio address of Bishop Freeman of Washington yesterday morning marked the first time the voice of an American bishop has ever been heard in this country from England. Bishop Freeman, who is abroad attending the Lambeth conference and to participate in the celebration of the founding of the Canterbury Cathedral, speaking from London took occasion to indorse the Naval treaty which the Senate will take up today.

"It may not express the highest ideals or realize the fullest expectation of our people," the bishop said, "nevertheless it declares to the world our determination to begin a work the ultimate end of which is world tranquillity and peace."

Not only was he heard in Washington, but by means of a network of Columbia stations, his address was carried to the Pacific Coast and the principal cities of the country. Coming into the Capital through Station WMAL his voice sounded as natural as if he were delivering his regular Sunday afternoon sermon, and with about the same volume and clarity. A group of friends heard the broadcast in the WMAL studio.

Reception Is Good.

There seemed to be the minimum of static which was all the more remarkable because, due to sultry summer atmospheric conditions, it was hardly possible to get a station outside of Washington with any degree of satisfaction.

"The swift currents of the ether are carrying my voice with lightning speed to the remotest boundaries of Great Britain and America," the bishop declared. "It is the greatest of modern miracles. It is a God-ordained means of communication and a new tie between our peoples.

"May this not become the mighty factor in determining our destinies, thus making the old empire and the young republic neighbors, friends and brothers in the quest for world ordered peace?

Reference to Treaty.

"As I speak from London I feel no consciousness of addressing strangers; the very fact that I can thus penetrate homes here with my voice, even as I am penetrating the homes of my own absent family and friends in America, makes me feel the intimacy of our relationship and the unity of our life."

Referring to the treaty, the bishop said further:

"More important than anything set forth in the treaty is the spirit that lies behind it. England and America have given a new demonstration of their purpose to work in harmony for high and holy ends.

"It is not an Anglo-American agreement to safeguard and protect Anglo-American interests. It is an affirmation of the will of the two nations to set forward the peace of the world. Comradeship is ever more vital and binding than carefully drawn treaties.

To Return in Four Weeks.

"It certainly becomes increasingly evident, so close and intimate are the relations of our two peoples, that whatever affects one ultimately affects the other. It is fitting that at this time the Christian church should register and affirm its judgment that the implications of the recent conference as expressed in the naval agreement should be supported and ratified by those in authority."

At the conclusion of the address the British announcer said that Bishop Freeman expected to return to this country in about four weeks.

It was a coincidence that his voice should have been heard from Station WMAL yesterday inasmuch as that station on the same day undertook the regular Sunday afternoon broadcasts from the Washington Cathedral, which have been carried for several years by WRC.

Two other notable broadcasts are scheduled from London this week, the first today when the Prince of Wales will address the National Union of Students (WRC, WMAL—3:25 p. m.) and the second tomorrow morning, when the voice of King George will be heard (WRC—6 a. m.) if an attempted rebroadcast at that time is successful.

Baby Bitten by Big Rat Is Treated at Hospital

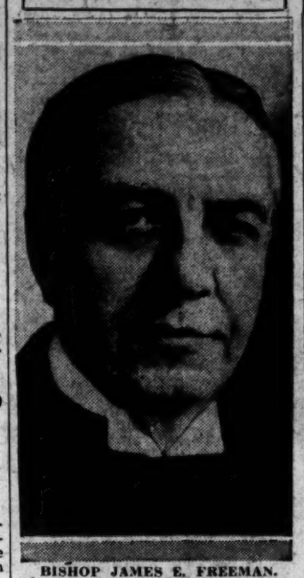
The baby was treated at Georgetown Hospital for bites on the forehead and left arm and allowed to go home after treatment.

LAUDS TREATY



BISHOP JAMES E. FREEMAN.

CAPITAL HEAD LAUDS MILITARY CAMPERS

Reichelderfer Greets Young Men in Training at Fort Monroe.

MOCK ATTACKS STAGED

Praise for the Citizens Military Training Camps was expressed by Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissioners, in a letter received by the men in camp at Fort Monroe, Va., yesterday.

Extending a "most hearty welcome" to the young men, Dr. Reichelderfer wrote in part:

"These training camps afford an opportunity to the young men of America to learn lessons in military science and to develop themselves both mentally and physically so as to become better citizens. The training inculcates in them a respect for discipline and an appreciation of their duty to theri country.

"I only regret that the number of boys who can receive this training is so limited that all who should get it can not be given an opportunity to receive it. It is on boys such as you have that this camp that the future of the Nation depends."

Baltimore's harbor defenses were being attacked yesterday by the Red, or enemy, fleet as part of the command post exercises of the Third Corps Area. In 1814 an actual enemy attacked the city, but failed to capture it.

Small raids were made yesterday by the Reds against the Blue defensive forces at Back and York rivers, on the rear of Fort Monroe. Visibility was poor, but the Blues were successful in driving off the attackers. The commanding general of the Third Corps Area received word that a Red convoy had appeared at the entrance of Delaware Bay, but what conclusions the intelligence section drew from this, or what information is had of its size, source or intentions are not known now.

Man Late for Date Is Discovered Dead

Body of Dr. James H. Stone Found by Friend, Who Missed Him.

When Dr. James H. Stone failed to keep a date for the baseball game yesterday, the man with whom the physician had an appointment went to his room and found the doctor dead. A certificate of death from natural causes was issued.

Dr. Stone, a prominent Washington physician, was 60 years old, and lived at 1308 Rhode Island avenue. He lived alone and had no relatives in Washington. Persons at the house said that his brother, who is on his way here from New York, would take charge of the body and make funeral arrangements.

Saturday night Dr. Stone made an engagement with Albert Chaplain, a roomer in the house on Rhode Island avenue, to go to the baseball game Sunday. When he did not appear at the appointed time, Chaplain investigated, and found the body.

Five-Block Chase Ends With Capture of Pair

A five-block chase ended at Maryland avenue and Third street southwest last night where Motorcycle Traffic Policeman C. W. Sine said he captured an automobile bearing three half-gallons of alleged liquor and two Negroes, whom he arrested on transportation and possession charges.

The men, booked at the Fourth Precinct station, were Charles Douglas, 30 years old, of Kings court near Fourth street northwest, and George Dorsey, 60 years old, of New Jersey avenue near Twelfth street northwest. Douglas also was charged with speeding.

DRY AGENT RIDDLED IN SPOTLIGHT GLARE

Slayer, Hidden by Fence in Aguilar, Colo., Fires Five Shells Into Body.

VICTIM TRAILED BY CAR

Aguilar, Colo., July 6 (A.P.).—Secreted behind a fence an unidentified assassin shot and killed Dale F. Kearney, 30 years old, Federal prohibition agent, as Mr. Kearney walked down the main street of Aguilar early today. The gunman made his escape in an automobile, which drove up the street immediately after the slaying.

It was at first believed the dry agent was shot down from a car, but investigation by Sheriff E. A. Duling, of Las Animas County, and Federal officers resulted in the theory that Mr. Kearney was ambushed. There were no witnesses to the shooting.

Mr. Kearney had been stationed in Trinidad, 20 miles south of here, for several months, having been transferred to this district from the Denver office. He had a record for unusual activity in the arrest and prosecution of liquor law violators and was credited with having virtually "cleaned up" Walsenburg, near here.

The agent received virtually the entire charge of the murderer's shotgun in his right side under the arm. Police believe a car drove down the street behind the dry agent and threw a light on Kearney to aid the gunman. Five shotgun shells were found behind the fence near which Mr. Kearney's body fell.

A garage attendant reported seeing a car moving slowly down the street and almost immediately afterward heard five shots fired.

Federal agents and Las Animas County officers began a vigorous man hunt for the gunman and his accomplices, although they admitted they had but meager clews upon which to work. Mr. Kearney's widow and two daughters survive him.

Refuel Champions Fly As Holiday Pastime

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—John and Kenneth Hunter, who hold the world's refueling endurance flight record, enjoyed an aviator's holiday today. They went for an airplane ride. Although not fully recovered from the rigors of the flight they ended Friday, the champions passed a happy period in a borrowed plane above Sky Harbor Airport, scene of their epic conquest.

The Hunters will appear in the Cook County Circuit Court Tuesday to answer a suit seeking to enjoin them from selling their plane or handling the profits of their flight until an accounting is rendered the stockholders of a corporation which sponsored their endurance attempt last November.

Impeachment Hint Follows Pardons

Atlanta's Mayor for Day Criticized for Freeing 268 Prisoners.

Atlanta, Ga., July 6 (A.P.).—J. Allen Couch, Atlanta's big-hearted alderman, who freed 268 prisoners in a gesture of independence while acting as mayor on the Fourth of July, tonight faced possible impeachment.

Alderman G. Everett Millican announced he probably would begin impeachment proceedings at the next meeting of the city council, charging that Couch exceeded his authority. Police spoke their displeasure at Couch's action and continued to rearrdest as many of the prisoners as they could on old charges.

Couch, who, incidentally, is under indictment on a charge of bribery which grew out of exposure of wholesale graft in municipal affairs, served as mayor while I. N. Ragsdale, regular head of the city government, was in New York welcoming Bobby Jones home.

When Mayor gaRsdale arrived home yesterday he promptly issued a criticism of Couch, but said he could do nothing. "I don't think he had o moral right to take such action," he said.

Quadrupling Seen In Foreign Trade

Expansion Since 1910 Is Pointed Out by Commerce Department Officila.

(Associated Press.)

American business dealings abroad, which meant a turnover of about $5,000,000,000 annually 20 years ago, have expanded to the point that their 1929 dimensions could be represented only by setting a turnover total of $20,000,000,000.

The estimate was expressed during the course of a radio talk last night by Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce. He emphasized that the complex relationships of modern nations required the inclusions of tourist expenditure, of charitable and mission donations and of international investment swings to determine the reality aboout national trade balances.

"Our excess imports of foreign pleasures and culture alone, through the medium of tourist travel, gave other countries last year about $570,000,000 with which to make payments to us for merchandise or any other items they owed," Dr. Klein remarked. "While our demand for foreign goods was less than the foreign demand for our goods, our desire for their services and scenery was much greater than their desire for ours."

Treasury's Bills Ready for Bidding

Federal Reserve Banks to Sell $50,000,000 Worth Up to July 10.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Mellon announced yesterday the first financing for the new fiscal year. The Treasury through Federal Reserve Banks will revelve bids for $50,000,000 90-day Treasury bills up to 2 o'clock on the afternoon of July 10.

The bills will be issued under the law that went into effect a year ago permitting the Treasury to sell the bills on a discount basis and redeem them at par when they mature. It will be the fourth issue of such securities which have been found a popular way of raising money needed by the Government at a lower interest cost.

The bills will be dated July 14 and mature on September 15, the date of the third payment of income tax for the calendar year 1929. Bids will not be received at the Treasury.
